MINERS IDLE; AWAIT GOVERNMENT MOVE

Six Killed, 200 Injured in Riots at Detroit

STATE TROOPS CALLED; 238 PERSONS HELD

State Police and Guardsmen in Action as Governor Trys To Halt Disorders.

By The Associated Press

DETROIT, June 21—Michigan State police and state troops were ordered to Detroit today to restore order after six persons were killed and some 200 injured in widespread race riots.

Captain Donald S. Leonard of Michigan state police announced shortly before 11 a. m. that Governor Harry Kelly of Michigan had ordered mobilization of the state forces.

At that time outbreaks of violence which had spread from an altercation at the Belle Isle bridge late last night were continuing despite the mobilization of the entire 3,500 members of the police force of the nation's fourth city.

Six Negroes had lost their lives. A white physician and a police sergeant were critically injured.

Mayor Jeffries in a public statement said: "The whole trouble apparently had its inception in an isolated fist fight. There is absolutely no evidence at the present time of any organized effort to create trouble.

1,000 State Troops Called

Capt. Leonard said the governor had directed mobilization, at two Detroit armories, of 1,000 state troops picked from the best-trained companies in the state. In addition, he said, between 400 and 500 members of the state police force including those in Michigan's upper peninsula, more than 300 miles from Detroit, were already mobilized and standing ready for action if needed.

Governor Kelly arranged to fly to Detroit from Columbus, O., where he had gone for the annual governors' conference.

Kelly also asked Maj. Gen. H. A. Aurand, commandant of the Sixth Service command, to hold in readiness a battalion of military police at River Rouge.

"I am not declaring martial law, Kelly said. "I am trying to hold the situation without that. The troops will be taken into Detroit company by company if and as needed.

"I am asking the Army to have its military police battalion at River Rouge on the alert."

Kelly, at Columbus, O., for the annual governors' conference, acted after conferring by telephone with his secretary, Tom Kenny, at Lansing, and Mayor Edward J. Jeffries of Detroit.

To Fly to Detroit

Arrangements were made to fly Kelly and his adjutant general, LeRoy Pearson, to Michigan in an Army bomber at once.

"If we can hotlle this fast we won't need martial law," Kelly said. "Thank heaven the Michigan state guard is well organized."

In a telephone conversation with Oscar Olander, Michigan state police commissioner, the governor declared:

"My orders are these, bring in more than you need rather than less. We've got to stop this today if we're ever going to. We'll try to handle it without martial law."

The governor expressed satisfaction that there was sufficient manpower to handle the situation quickly.

Inspector Fred Stephens of the detective bureau reported every window along Hastings street between Medbury and Vernor highway, a distance of 25 blocks, was broken. Many of the stores in this area were looted of beer and liquor. Senior Inspector Edward Piggins reported a crowd of 500 persons broke into a pawn shop on Hastings street, obtaining revolvers and ammunition.

Hastings street is the center of the Detroit Negro area.

The police sergeant critically injured was Floyd C. Noot, 38-year-old father of three children, who was shot as he and Patrolman Forrest J. Hartwick Jr. engaged in a gun fight with Negroes during a Hastings street clothing looting.

When Noot and a detail of 11 policemen arrived, the Negroes

MARION TO SEE JAP SUBMARINE

One from Pearl Harbor Coming To Help Boost Bond and Stamp Sales.

A June war bond sales drive built around the scheduled visit here on July 2 of the two-man Jap submarine captured at Pearl Harbor was announced today by Elmer J. Schoenlaub, county war bonds chairman, who has selected A. W. Kettie as chairman of the event.

Beginning today, all persons who buy an $18.75 bond or one of larger denomination at the bank, savings and loan association or postoffice issuing agencies in the county or at the Victory House may obtain a ticket to inspect the sub at close range and walk through it. Children may be admitted with the purchase of a 25-cent war savings stamp.

On National Tour

The sub will be on display in Marion at a location to be determined later. It has been on tour throughout the country for the treasury department in the interests of selling war bonds and will come here from Lima and go from Marion to Mansfield on its current tour.

Banks and postoffices in rural communities of the county have been supplied with tickets, to be turned over to bond buyers asking for them.

The submarine is America's first trophy captured after the Pearl Harbor attack. It is known as a Japanese two-man "suicide" submarine.

The submarine is mounted on a tractor-trailer. 94 feet long and will be paraded through the streets to the exhibition location.

Stimulates Sales

The nationwide tour of the submarine started Navy Day, Oct. 27, from San Francisco and has been as effective in its simulation of war bond and stamp sales as the submarine was supposed to have been in its sneak attack on Pearl Harbor.

The submarine, after its capture, was taken apart at Pearl Harbor by the U. S. Navy for study, and photographs were taken and blueprints made of the many parts. The submarine was then shipped to the Mare Island Navy Yard at San Francisco and put back together. Portholes were cut in both sides of the hull and folding steps and catwalks put on so that the public might view the interior. The only means of entrance is through a 15½ inch opening atop the conning tower.

Cong. Smith Opposes Collaboration Proposal

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, June 21—Representative Frederick C. Smith of Marion, O., (R) has joined opponents of a resolution to set up world peace machinery on the ground its adoption by congress would "play into the hands of a group that seeks to destroy the sovereignty of the United States and put the people under the rule of a world super-state."

He said it was unfortunate the house foreign affairs committee approved the resolution which would sanction American collaboration in establishment and maintenance of a world peace program after the war.

Governors' Wives Get Chance To Compare Notes

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., June 21 — Governor's wives, who accompanied their husbands to the governor's conference here this week, are getting a thrill out of seeing —governors.

Said Mrs. Earl Warren, California's charming first lady: "What would I like to do most while I'm here? Why meet all the governors of course. I'm just as excited about seeing them as the next person."

It was a first visit to the Buckeye capital for a majority of the gubernatorial ladies. While their husbands began today a three-day discussion of state problems, they prepared to relax and have fun.

Only Vacation

Mrs. Herbert B. Maw of Utah said "It's the only vacation a governor's wife ever gets.

And like all mothers, they are eager to compare family notes with each other.

Mrs. Melville Broughton of North Carolina reported the day her 15-year-old son, Woodson, became an Eagle Scout, was the proudest in her life.

Mrs. Spessard L. Holland left Florida a week early to see her oldest son, Spessard Jr. receive his commission in the Marines at Quantico, Va., before coming to the conference.

A visit with her six-day-old grandson in Florida awaits Mrs. Dwight Griswold of Nebraska at the termination of the conference.

Children Expect Call

The children of the Raymond E. Baldwins of Connecticut will receive a telephone call from their mother tonight. "We wanted to bring them but felt they shouldn't take up train space so badly needed for more vital travel, Mrs. Baldwin said.

"Oh I've got five children, Mrs. Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts answered in repsonse to a query. "Leverett Jr., in the army engineers, Emily in the Waves, Peter in the Marines somewhere in the South Pacific, and then Billy and Susan, who are working regular—and long hours—on a farm."

Meat Price Rollback Program Begins Today

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, June 21—An average 3-cent-a-pound reduction in the retail price of most meats went into effect today—the second of three price rollbacks undertaken by the office of price administration through payments of subsidies.

The cutbacks affects all meat except cured and processed pork, but those cuts will come under the subsidy plan July 5.

The new meat prices followed a 10 per cent reduction in butter prices earlier this month. A similar reduction is scheduled for coffee prices, but an effective date has not yet been set.

WASHINGTON, June 21—Heavy bombing raids scoring a number of hits on the Japanese airfield at Tarawa in the Gilbert Islands were reported by the Navy today.

Nazis Say Allies Massing Forces In Mediterranean

Fleets and Landing Craft Reported Assembling at Many Points Including Syrian Coast, Gibraltar.

By The Associated Press

German broadcasts declared today an allied invasion fleet was assembling in the eastern Mediterranean off the Syrian coast, that landing craft were being moved into position in North Africa and that a large British and American naval force was concentrated at Gibraltar.

The unconfirmed axis reports of the massing of invasion forces in the Mediterranean theater coincided with an allied headquarters communique announcing heavy new aerial thrusts by British and American armadas across the narrow seas at air fields and ports of Sicily and eyewitness reports via Stockholm that Italian morale already was broken by bombings and war reverses.

Short in food, sleep and hope, the Italians were declared ready and eager for peace, and jamming the seven hills of Rome in a search for safety. Reliable allied quarters in North Africa, however, denied rumors that Crown Prince Umberto, Marshal Pietro Badoglio, King Vittorio Emanuele or any other Italian emissary had arrived there to negotiate an unconditional surrender.

Other war headlines today were:

Australia—Spitfires cut down Japanese armada in 10-minute battle, shooting down at least nine, perhaps 22, out of a 48-plane armada attempt to raid Darwin; Liberators again bathe Rabaul airdromes in bombs and incendiaries.

Russia—Heavy Russian artillery bombardments in Sevsk sector of pivotal Orel front announced; Red air fleet smashes hangars, stores, plane parks at Bryansk and Karachev, rounding out week in which 276 German planes and 94 Soviet planes were reported destroyed.

Atlantic — New allied "vest pocket" aircraft carrier proves worth in five-day, five-night convoy battle in which planes and ships destroyed two, perhaps five or more, of Adolf Hitler's U-boats.

Air war—Berlin radio says RAF raided southwestern Germany Sunday night, reports no damage; the Schneider Armament works at Le Creusot, the French "Krupps," reported "mountain of debris" after big Saturday night assault.

Wellington bombers, roaring out from bases in northwest Africa, loosed another cargo of bombs Saturday night on the ferry terminus at Messina, Sicily, allied headquarters in North Africa announced.

American bombers escorted fighters, followed up this thrust by attacking enemy airfields in Sicily yesterday, the announcement said.

Barracks Hit

Hits were reported on barracks and administrative buildings at Castelverano and on dispersal areas at Borizzo and Milo.

Sixteen enemy aircraft were shot down during these operations, while five allied planes failed to return, the communique said.

(The Italian communique, asserting that 26 allied planes were shot down, said Napies, Foggia, Spinazzola in Bari Province, Reggio Calabria and San Giovanni in the Italian toe, and localities in Sicily were bombed yesterday by the allies.

(The war bulletin, broadcast by the Rome radio and recorded by The Associated Press, said axis submarines sank one steamer and hit a second in a strongly-escorted allied convoy in the western Mediterranean, and that torpedo-carrying planes hit another allied

ITALIANS LONG FOR WAY OUT

Nation Reported Having Food Troubles as Well as Bombings; Look to Pope.

By The Associated Press

STOCKHOLM, June 21 — The Italian people want to get out of the war and gain relief from allied bombings that have hammered pre-invasion warnings home to Italy's industrial centers, informants recently returned from that country said today.

Short of food except in high priced black market trading, short of sleep because of allied air raids, and short of hope because they have lost faith in Mussolini's Fascist regime, the Italians were reported welcoming invasion or a separate peace as putting them out of their current misery.

As the invasion threat grows, it was said, the Italians talk more and more about their chances of getting out of the war.

Between Two Fires

"Many of them feel they are between two fires," these sources said. "They say 'if we sued for peace today we would have only German bombers over our cities tomorrow instead of allied planes.'"

(Rumors among the French civil population in North Africa Saturday that highly-placed Italian envoys were there asking for a separate peace were officially declared by allied sources to be without basis.)

Among all the wartime confusion, Pope Pius XII stood out as the most important figure in Italy, the informants said here, with the average Italian looking hopefully to him as "the man of the hour."

Because of the nearness of Vatican City, which leads to a popular belief Rome will not be bombed, the capital now is jammed with evacuees from other bombed cities, with lodging non-existent and food scarce.

"If Rome is bombed there will be absolute chaos and catastrophe," one source said.

Black Market Troubles

Moreover, German officers who have poured into the capital were accused of feeding the black market by freely trading military stores so they can go on spending sprees. An ordinary package of popular brand American cigarets brings 490 lira (about $24.93 at 1941 exchange rates) and a suit of good cloth costs 6,000 lira ($340) in the black market.

More Farm Workers Needed

Some Register in Last Week but Not Enough To Solve Farmers' Problem in Marion County, Officials Say.

Six more schoolboys and a few full time adult workers were secured by O. E. Barks, special Marion county labor assistant, during the past week for employment on Marion county farms. However, both he and Arthur Smith, county agricultural extension agent, are of the opinion that these laborers, together with those who have been registered within the last month are not sufficient to solve the county labor problem.

An appeal has already been made by county farm officials for emergency workers, expected to be mainly residents of the city of Marion. If a large number of these part-time workers register with Mr. Smith or Mr. Barks before hay harvesting season in about one or two weeks, farmers think the labor shortage problem will be remedied to a satisfactory degree.

Considerable alfalfa crop has been harvested. Harvesting of the remaining two crops poses a serious problem for all county farmers.

Two more state highway department tractors have been obtained by Mr. Smith with the cooperation of Clyde Porterfield, Marion district engineer of the highway department. This brings to six the total number of highway tractors now being used by county farmers in harvesting. Of these, four are satisfactory, the other two have broken down in the midst of some important harvesting tasks.

Work of these tractors will probably end in about a week. Nine farmers have used the tractors and a few more will probably employ the highway vehicles this week.

Roosevelt Praises States' War Role as Governors Meet

Message Calls for Continued Cooperation; Post-War Non-Isolationist Policy Forecast by G.O.P.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., June 21 — President Roosevelt, in a message to the 35th annual governors' conference here, said today the time of the conference "is critical in that everything that we have developed, everything that we believe and cherish, is threatened as never before."

"The time is important," the President said, "because America, along with the other United Nations, is engaged in a world-wide struggle to determine whether the type of government which we have established and maintained here in the United States—a government dedicated to the welfare of all the people—can continue to exist."

The states underlined the critical nature of the times, Mr. Roosevelt said, "and for more than two years they have been devoting their efforts and dedicating their resources to the defense program and the prosecution of the war."

Cites Coordination

"As never before in our history," he continued, "federal, state and local governments have been coordinating their efforts and focusing their activities upon one all-important common objective—winning the war.

"I think we can take pride in the manner in which this great democratic people, operating through its regularly constituted public authorities, has converted its plants, its factories and its mills. We can have a justifiable pride in what we have done so far, but only if such pride serves as a stimulant for the more arduous tasks that lie ahead—tasks to which we have put our hand, and tasks which we mean to see through.

"I congratulate you and the states that you represent for the job already done, and I look forward confidently to even closer cooperation and more effective operation as the nation, the states and the localities—all composed of the same people—press on to victory."

Forecast GOP Policy

Meanwhile, Michigan's Republican governor, Harry F. Kelley, joined New York's Thomas E. Dewey today in forecasting a non-isolationist post-war policy would be framed by the Republican party for the 1944 presidential campaign.

Here for the governor's conference, Kelly told reporters "more facts" would have to be available before he and the people of Michigan and the midwest could make up their minds on detailed collaboration plans. Also, he cautioned, American sovereignty should be safeguarded in any peace-maintaining schemes.

In an earlier interview, Gov. Dewey was outspoken in predicting the Republicans would frame a "constructive" post-war cooperation policy—"specific" and free of "isolationism."

Politics has no place on the agenda of the governors' meeting

Jimmy Mayden Gets Hole-in-One at Country Club

The Amalgamated Order of Hole-in-One Makers yesterday added to its ranks Jimmy Mayden of 364 East Church street, manager of the Smith Clothing Co. store on East Center street.

Playing with B. H. Buettin and Herb Petrich, Mayden holed his tee shot on the 150yard par three No. 6 hole at the Marion Country club. Mayden used a No. 5 iron to score the ace, one of several recorded in recent years on the same hole but the first made so far this season at either Marion course. His score for the round was 42.

Mayden said his tee shot struck near the front of the green and rolled about 20 feet before dropping into the cup.

Several years ago Mr. Petrich scored a hole in one on the same hole. Mr. Buettin said it was the first ace he ever saw.

Mr. Mayden has been playing golf for 15 years, the last year and a half at the Country club.

City Bus Company, Labor Hearing Is Held Today

A closed war labor board hearing started this morning in Cleveland in the Marion Rapid Transit Co. and CIO Transport Workers dispute, involving 20 employes.

Regional WLB offices in Cleveland said no reports would be made until the three-man panel hearing arguments of both sides makes its findings.

The tri-partite panel is composed of Howard Metzenbaum of Cleveland, member of the Ohio legislature, chairman and public representative, A. W. Hickman of Cleveland, retired personnel director of the American Steel & Wire Co., industrial representative, and Ward J. Rudden of Cleveland, president of Local 55 of Mine, Mill & Smelter workers union, labor representative.

The hearing was ordered recently after the dispute had been certified to the war labor board for hearing.

UMW REJECTS "YELLOW DOG" WLB PROPOSAL

Adopt "No Contract, No Work" Policy for Third Time, Stalling Production.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, June 21—The big coal mining cog of the nation's war machine stalled again today and the 500,000 miners who run it looked to the government for their cue.

Rejecting what they termed an "infamous yellow dog contract" proposed by the war labor board, John L. Lewis and his United Mine Workers invoked their "no contract no work" policy for the third time within two months after negotiations with the operators collapsed.

By mid-morning there were no reports of any UMW members working in disregard of that policy in either bituminous or anthracite pits. And in Illinois at least 1,000 of the state's 15,000 AFL Progressive Mine Workers were idle in a sympathy stoppage that affected three of the state's 130 mines with PMW contracts.

The door was held open for a speedy resumption of operations under the direct sponsorship of the government, however, and the next move appeared to be up to Interior Secretary Ickes, who was placed in charge of the mines on May 1 as federal fuels administrator.

Ickes, represented by his aides as feeling that no precipitate action last night could have fended off the expiration of the latest work truce at midnight, made no immediate comment. He canceled a projected trip to Columbus, O., where he was to have attended the governors' conference and stood by to receive union representatives.

Operators Drop Out

The operators declared with the breaking off of negotiations yesterday "no possibility of agreement exists" so long as the miners continue their insistence on $1.50 a day extra pay for underground travel time. This figure had been whittled down from an original demand of $2.

The mine workers' policy committee, in a 70-word statement assailing the war labor board, which Lewis has charged with prejudice, declared:

"We assert the willingness of the mine workers to work and continue the production of coal for the government itself, under the direction of the custodian of mines.

"The executive officers of the United Mine Workers of America are hereby instructed to hold themselves in readiness to confer with the secretary of the interior."

The third stoppage in the recurring crisis, which hit anthracite as well as soft coal mines, came in the face of a report by the office of war information stressing the importance of coal to the war economy.

64,000 Miners Idle

The work stoppages began in an orderly fashion with the Friday night shifts and approximately 64,000 miners had quit work before the whistles blew an empty summons this morning.

As Joe O'Grady, union local vice president at Ohio's Willow Grove mine summed it up:

"We're not on strike, but we're not going to work because we haven't any contract."

The walkout brought what was described as "an immediate crisis"

AP ANSWERS U. S. CHARGES

Affidavits Declare Membership Policy Involves No Bar to Non-Members' Success.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, June 21—The Associated Press prepared to file in federal court today more than half a hundred affidavits in opposition to a government motion for summary judgment in the anti-trust suit action against the non-profit, co-operative newsgathering agency.

Other affidavits also were placed in the record by the Chicago Tribune, a co-defendant which has made a separate answer to the government charges seeking to open AP membership to all who are willing and able to pay their share of the cost.

Arguments on the summary judgment motion, by which the government seeks a decision against the AP without the taking of testimony from witnesses in open court trial, are scheduled to be heard by a three-judge federal court July 2.

Chief among the AP affidavits was one prepared by Frank B. Noyes, publisher of the Washington Star and president of the AP for 38 years until 1938, who declared "it was not contemplated by the men who organized the AP that any newspaper in the United States . . . [illegible] . . . could . . . [illegible] . . . a true cooperative association, the members of which . . . [illegible] . . . at their own expense."

Defends Membership Control

Noyes . . . [illegible] . . . my experience . . . [illegible] . . . the publication of . . . [illegible] . . . a fact . . . [illegible] . . . Noyes said . . . [illegible] . . . my judgment that it is not possible to maintain an unbiased, complete and accurate news report unless there exists . . . [illegible] . . . the control of such a report . . . [illegible] . . . cooperative members . . . [illegible] . . . which members . . . [illegible] . . . control the operations of the organization."

Noyes declared in support of the AP to serve all comers would bring about a condition "fraught with the gravest danger to the freedom of the press and in turn to the freedom of the people."

In general the affidavits replied to 21 affidavits filed by the government in support of its motion made May 25 and challenged the government contention that the AP should serve every newspaper. They included numerous declarations from editors and publishers subscribing to news services other than AP who said they found membership in AP no bar to successful newspaper operations.

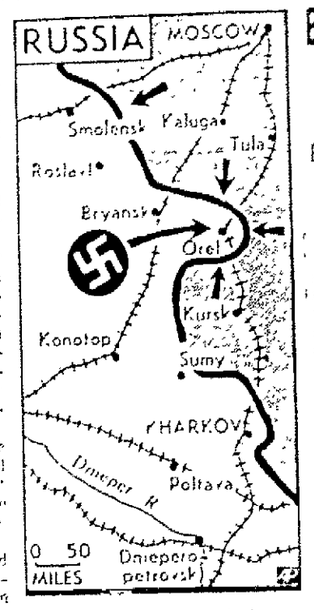
Tells About Mat Service

An affidavit by Kent Cooper, executive director and general manager of AP, said AP acquired Wide World Photos, Inc., of which the government seeks to have the AP divest itself, after Arthur Hays Sulzberger, president and publisher of the New York Times, informed him that the Times proposed to discontinue Wide World "but that if AP desired to purchase the company, the New York Times would be willing to sell it to AP, of which the Times was a member, but that it would not sell Wide World to anyone else."

He said that the mat service of Wide World was discontinued by AP because it proved to be a financial loss.

Edwin M. Williams, vice president and general manager of United Press Associations, said that "in my experience, newspaper readers have not preferred or demanded The Associated Press news service as against UP news service" and added that he knew of no instance where access to a particular news service was determinative of a paper's success or failure.

An affidavit by Frank J. Starzel, AP traffic executive, replied to one filed for the government by Manfred K. Toeppen which compared leased wires of the AP and United Press. Starzel said Toeppen's comparison contained errors because it "arbitrarily excludes certain facilities used by the UP."



RUSSIA has announced clashes between scouting parties on the Smolensk front (top arrow). Meanwhile, both German and Russian forces were reported massing in the Orel sector, portending a major offensive.

Vocational Teachers at State Conference

Marion county vocational agriculture teachers who attended the annual conference of agriculture instructors at Ohio State university last week included Archie Bishop of Morral, Albert B. Sanderson of Waldo, Burdett Hunter of LaRue-Meeker, Robert Jackson of Claridon-Caledonia, Ralph Young of Prospect and Milford Schmidt of Pleasant.

The 4-day program centered about ways and means vocational agriculture teachers can help increase food production in spite of farm labor and machinery shortages. Importance of adult farm short courses, boys' farming programs and work of Future Farmers of America chapters were stressed and teachers' responsibility for farm labor and victory garden projects received attention.

BLAMES TROUBLE ON NEW POLICY MAKERS

Editorial Association Speaker Hits So-Called Experts.

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, June 21 — Delegate, attending the National Editorial War-Time conference returned to their homes today after being told a new group of national policy makers, to be distinguished from "professional planners," is one of the underlying causes of confusion in Washington.

"Men of broad experience in coordinating government agencies in behalf of business organizations are one of the greatest stumbling blocks to cooperation between industry and government . . . a group of newcomers drawn from business itself," declared William L. Daley, N.E.A. Washington representative.

"These newcomers have never achieved notable success in business but have quickly set themselves up as 'experts' and have taken advantage of their temporary posts," Daley said.

He added that a distinction must be drawn between this new group and some successful business men who have been drafted into government service.

Albert S. Hardy, Gainesville, Fla., publisher of the Gainesville News, succeeded Edwin F. Abels, Lawrence, Kan., as president. Abels was elected chairman of the board, succeeding Raymond Howard, London, O.

The Stars Say—

For Tuesday, June 22

WHILE THERE are signs of progress, preferment and many sorts of advancement in the direction of cherished ambitions, it is advised that these may have to be worked for by well directed effort and proper organized plans. Sudden and surprising factors may arise calling for determination as well as astuteness and the aid of those in power. Readiness and preparation go far and may bring some token of public appreciation.

Those whose birthday it is have the presage of a very promising year for the attainment of their ambitious hopes and desires. But these may have to be wrested from a suddenly arising situation of a devastating or shattering quality, and which may demand astuteness.

Superiors, elders and those in high places may graciously abet such ingenuity and skill.

A child born on this day should have high ambitions and ideals, sustained by originality of thought and independence of action, attracting public approval and support rfom elders. It should be popular and progressive.

Recreation Board Surveys Program in Four City Parks

Members To Meet To Consider Ways of Increasing Public Interest in Summer Recreation Plan.

Marion's recreation commission will meet this week in a special session to devise an effective plan for stimulating increased public interest in the city recreation program, which is now in the infant stage. Scheduling of this meeting resulted from an inspection tour of the four city parks included in the program by the four commissioners Saturday.

This important "pep-up" meeting will be held in the board of education room of the school administration building on South Prospect street. Time of the meeting has not yet been decided.

Saturday's tour was planned with a three fold aim: first, to inspect the personnel hired by the commission for positions of leaders in the parks; second, to inspect the actual accomplishments of the personnel, and third, to inspect the facilities with which the park supervisors have to work.

Find Turnout Small

The commissioners also discovered that there is a difficult task facing them. Victor Dorris, the city recreation commissioner, and the various park directors. They found a surprisingly small number of Marion boys and girls participating in recreational activities at the parks Saturday.

The commissioners, Robert Mason, O. A. Nystrom, Frank Robinson, and Douglas Torrance, after the tour considered various mediums, to familiarize the public with the program and to stimulate more interest and active participation in it.

Opinions of the entire board concerning the two weeks old recreation program might be represented in a view voiced by one of the commissioners following the tour, "we have the fundamentals for a successful program, namely: ample land, good parks, and adequate equipment. What we need now is the enthusiasm and whole-hearted interest of the people of Marion. We have far from completed our job in setting up a sound recreation program but with that very same cooperation of Marion's citizens we should be successful."

Average Age Low

An important discovery in Saturday's tour of Garfield, McKinley, Lincoln, and Oakland-Marion Steam Shovel recreation playgrounds, related to the age of boys and girls who have been registered during the first two weeks of the program. The average age was found to be 10 years or less. The main reason for the absence of older children, the commissioners concluded, was the employment of so many junior high and high school boys and girls in stores or factories during the daytime. Moreover, when these older children return from work in the evening they are apt to rest or help with chores around the house.

The attendance during last week at the respective parks was as follows: Lincoln 400, McKinley 300, Oakland-M.S.S. 300, and Garfield 600. This makes a total attendance of about 1600 for last week or a decrease of approximately 500 under the first week's attendance.

Although, on the whole, each of the four city parks has enough equipment to serve recreational enthusiasts throughout the summer, Saturday's inventory showed a dearth of horseshoes. There are very few shoes owned by the city park system. Moreover, they are no longer on the market for recreational purposes. Therefore, the only solution according to the commissioners is for Marionites to donate any spare horseshoes they have to the rerreation commission. Any person desiring to contribute any shoes should contact one of the commissioners or directors of any of the four parks.

Picnics Help Attendance

In the course of interviews with the park directors and their assistants, commissioners found that picnics and parties in the parks have served to some extent as boosters for waning attendance. These picnics have been held mostly in the evening. Following festivities, many parents accompanying their children to park playgrounds.

At the time of the tour, Lincoln and Garfield park softball diamonds appeared to be in fine shape. However, the McKinley field was in need of considerable revamping.

A detailed system of intra-park and inter-park competition drawn up by Director Dorris will be under consideration at this week's meeting. This system, which will employ the principle of using squad leaders from the ranks of the children, is designed to increase interest among the boys and girls themselves.

There are about 100 parks in Buenos Aires, largest city of Latin America.

NAZI U-BOAT PACK REBUFFED

Atlantic Convoys Sink at Least 2 Subs; 97 Per Cent of Ships Unharmed.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, June 21—German U-boat packs attacking Atlantic convoys in one of the fiercest and most sustained offensives ever mounted were beaten off . . . [illegible] . . . many U-boats at a cost of three per cent of the allied vessels, it was announced officially last night.

"Three U-boats were destroyed, three probably were destroyed and others may have been damaged," said a communique issued jointly by the admiralty and air ministry.

Accounts of the battle were the first to describe results of the new allied technique of teaming escort carrier planes and land-based Flying Fortresses and Liberators with warships in the drive to clear the Atlantic of the undersea marauders.

The known submarine sinkings were credited to warships, but pocket-size escort carrier's planes and the big bombers detected the submarines so effectively that most of the engagements were fought many miles away from the convoyed vessels, the communique said. As a result, it added, "ninety-seven per cent of the ships forming the convoys reached harbor in safety and without having been molested."

At least two convoys were engaged by the submarines during the running battle.

The Daily Express naval reporter, W. A. Crumley, said that about 50 U-boats had been destroyed in the last two months, bringing the total destroyed since the beginning of the war to 250.

SHIPS, PLANES LEAD DEMANDS FOR STEEL

Production for Week Shows Slight Gain.

The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, June 21—Ships [illegible] continue to furnish [illegible] bone of steel demand, [illegible] other war requirements magazine Steel reporting.

"While shipbuilding centers heavily on plates, it also takes considerable tonnage of light shapes and is a factor in many other materials—wire rope, pipe and tubing, sheets, strip and bars," the trade publication continued.

"While various steel consumers are forced to modify operations due to reductions in some lines of ordnance, the fact remains that steel mill scheduled continue to tighten."

National ingot production jumped two points last week to 98½ per cent of estimated capacity. The Pittsburgh district accounted for most of this, climbing 7½ points to 97½ per cent of capacity, as Wheeling soared four to 90, Cincinnati five to 93 and Detroit four to 87. Cleveland dropped one-half point to 94½ per cent, while Youngstown was unchanged at 97.

Little Sectional Variance Over U.S. Post War Role

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., June 21—Sectional differences of opinion over whether America should play an active part in post-war world affairs are largely a figment of the imagination.

The public has been told so often that "the midwest is isolationist" that many political leaders and others have begun to accept this as an established fact. A section of the country deserves to be called isolationist only if the people themselves, as distinguished from their spokesmen, are isolationist.

On that score, all evidence gathered by the Institute in conversations with a carefully selected cross-section of the population in every state points to the conclusion that there are only slight differences of opinion between the various sections of the country on the question whether the United States should take an active role in world affairs.

In Minority

The people who want the country to return to the pre-war status and not take an active part in international matters constitute a very small, if vocal, minority.

One of the most important factors in determining whether a voter is for or against assuming a new role in world affairs is not geography. It is a matter of education.

The greater the amount of education a person has received, the more likely he is to be interventionist in his viewpoint, regardless of whether he lives North, South, East or West. Surveys have found, for example, that those who have had some college education are the most internationally minded, while those who have not gone beyond grammar school are the least internationally minded.

People in every state of the union have been questioned by the Institute on whether the United States should take an active role in the post-war world, and also on the more specific issue whether we should join with others in setting up an international police force after the war.

Least Interventionist

The evidence reveals that New England is the most interventionist section and the East Central states, (Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Michigan) the least.

However, even the East Central section is found to have more than two-thirds of its voters favoring an active role for the U. S. in world affairs.

The results follow:

	Take Active Part	Stay Out	Undec.
N. Eng.	81%	9%	10%
Pac. Coast	80	12	8
Mt. States	79	11	10
W. Cent.	78	13	9
South	76	11	13
M. Atl.	76	15	9
E. Cent.	71	18	11

On the basis of interviews made in each of the 48 states, Vermont was found to be the most interventionist, and West Virginia the least.

It is noteworthy that in no single state is the vote in favor of international participation lower than a two-thirds majority.

Chessie Writes a Letter to the Editor

To the Editor of The Marion Star

Sir:

EVEN a railroad kitten gets around now and then. And I have lately heard some questions asked and comments made about our railroads that have inspired me to write you this letter.

I suppose it is perfectly natural that people who see the enormous load of traffic our railroads are moving in wartime — people who watch millions of tons of freight and thousands of men in arms go rolling by—should say: "I'll bet the roads are coining money these days."

It seems to me that the truth of this question is something every American ought to know.

Nearly everyone has read or heard that during the recent years of depression the railroads had extreme difficulty making ends meet. In the twelve years following 1929, thirty-seven Class I railroads sought relief from their troubles in bankruptcy. Others staggered along under heavy burdens of debt. And the average earnings of all Class I railroads, for that period, were only 2.2% on investment.

But what many people do not know is that even in 1942, the American railroads earned only a moderate return on investment.

Railroad traffic increased enormously, of course. But so did operating costs, so did taxes. And the average earnings, for all Class I railroads, in our first year of war, were only five and a half per cent.

Even the railroad kitten, Mr. Editor, can see that this is not a profiteer's wage.

It is almost the same percentage as the earnings that were fixed by the government for the railroads during the last war. It is within what Congress declared in 1920 to be a fair earning on railroad value. And the Interstate Commerce Commission has repeatedly recognized the principle that a fair return should be gauged by the average earnings over a period; that the roads should be allowed to make up in good years for the lean.

Mine is a small voice. But this is a free country. And it gets my fur up to hear people undervalue our railroads.

Those who do have only to look around them to see how tremendous a part in our national crisis is being taken by cars and coaches and engines—and by the men who run them. For transport is the life-blood of our war effort.

We have reason to be thankful for the strength of our railroads. And equally good reason, with a view to the years ahead, to see that they continue to be strong and sound institutions.

Radar Rates as U. S. No. 1 Secret Super-Weapon

Radio "Eyes" of Our Armed Forces Has Shaped Course of Many Important Victories.

Radar is the United States secret super-weapon [illegible] eyes of our armed forces [illegible] group of [illegible] Associated Press tells the story [illegible] be published tomorrow.

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
(Copyright 1943, by The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, June 21—Radar, the [illegible] developed in the United States as a by-product of radio research by a little group of naval scientists, is the top secret of this war's most decisive battles — the device which [illegible] the course of history.

To military and naval men now it is [illegible] that we should [illegible] struggle with Radar. The record shows that [illegible] realize that Radar [illegible] got more than 20 years ago.

Long before the battle of Guadalcanal, they envisioned radio "eyes" to let warships "see" through fog and darkness. Long before the battle of Britain they saw a wall of detective rays ringing the frontiers of nations endangered by air attack. Armed before airplanes flew at night, they conceived the idea which make today's Allied night fighters the deadly killers they are.

This is the story of Radar so far as it may be told now, and of the men who made it.

Confident of Superiority

It is true that the Axis had a similar instrument; but the admirals and generals who decide such things believed ours was a lot better than theirs—knew it by performance if nothing else. They did not want any loose talk about Radar so they ordered no talk at all.

On April 25 the Army and Navy put out a joint and unspectacular release admitting the existence of a radio detecting and ranging device and naming it. Radar is a Navy code word meaning, logically enough, "Radio-Detecting-And-Ranging."

The British previously had broken down their equally barbed restrictions to some extent and this undoubtedly influenced the American decision in favor of disclosure.

But there were other reasons, too. Many skilled workers in Radar construction were being caught in the draft or were under other compulsion to get into uniform. Navy draft boards [illegible] questionnaires and [illegible] Radar [illegible] Manpower Commission [illegible] Radar [illegible] and [illegible] Radar came [illegible]

The Man Behind Radar

[illegible] early [illegible] and literally [illegible] and made [illegible] [illegible] from the [illegible] [illegible] professor [illegible] came [illegible] 1903 at the University of [illegible]. Dr. Hoyt Taylor [illegible] chief [illegible] and superintendent of the radio division of [illegible] naval research laboratory here.

Taylor's direct contributions to radio detection dealt mostly with the fundamental discoveries of how radio waves behave and with some of the first crude instruments and experiments. The naval research laboratory expanded and Taylor's duties became more complex, it fell to the lot of a younger genius to develop the first modern Radar equipment and perfect many of the improvements which have made it a battle instrument of uncanny precision.

Robert M. Page, sensitive soft-voiced chief of a research section of the laboratory's radio division is credited by his colleagues with doing more for Radar's technical progress than any other man on the staff.

Van Keuren In Command

The naval research laboratory, at which these men and their colleagues still work on the advancement of Radar, is, of course, a regular naval station and thus is under command of an officer. The present chief is Admiral A. H. Van Keuren, a veteran of many years service both at sea and ashore. Previously he had served as chief of the bureau of construction and repair and bureau of ships.

Van Keuren succeeded Rear Admiral Harold G. Bowen at the laboratory. The records clearly indicate that it was fortunate for Radar and therefore for the country that Bowen got interested in the laboratory's work about 13 years ago and began to promote it.

For Bowen became the needed link between the scientists on one hand and the Navy and congress on the other. The admiral's great enthusiasm always has been to get hold of and promote sound but revolutionary ideas, the depths of his belligerent soul are stirred most violently against conservative preference for keeping things the way they are.

A vigorous and confident missionary of progress, Bowen was one of a handful of farsighted men who campaigned for years to sell Radar to the fighting Navy and to congress, which as usual held the money bags. He cut red tape and regulations to deal frankly on Radar with members of the house and senate appropriations committee. They came through in the grand manner.

Funds Provided

"They were mighty impressed with what they learned, and they offered us a hundred thousand dollars," he said. "That was in 1935. We took it, and it was all we could use at that time. You can't buy inventions, you know. All we needed then was a little money for salaries to increase the staff a bit."

About 1940, when the crash of falling France was heard across the Atlantic, the appropriations grew in keeping with the increasing importance of the laboratory's preparations for war. The institution that had started out as a single gray concrete building rising alone out of the Potomac river mud flats below Washington blossomed, after 18 lean years, into a thriving center of naval science in many fields—the only place of its kind in the world.

Bowen performed another important function too. He interested industrialists in the manufacture of Radar equipment and thus cleared the way for its production on a quantity basis. The first Radar sets went into the fleet, in the Pacific, in December, 1940, a year before Pearl Harbor.

Skepticism as to their value vanished rapidly as they went on ship after ship and proved themselves by amazing performance. Thus officers and men were ready to use them to the fullest when war came, and in battle they proved themselves all over again, enabling our warriors of the sea to pull off feats they had not dreamed possible in pre-Radar years.

Late on the evening of Nov. 14, 1942, among the Solomon islands in the South Pacific, one of our warships was out looking for Japanese warships.

The sea battle for Guadalcanal was in its final phase, the issue still undecided. Aboard the American vessel, a Radar, like an invisible searchlight, probed the enshrouding darkness with its magical waves.

Suddenly the indicator on which Radar registers its discoveries disclosed the presence of an enemy vessel more than eight miles away.

The big ship lifted its gun muzzles toward the stars. They flashed and thundered by salvos. The second salvo, despite the darkness and 16,000-yard range, landed squarely on the target.

The American ships went on not only to win but to turn the battle for Guadalcanal into one of the most costly routs in Japanese history.

The British version of Radar, known as Radio-Locator, matched in military results the heroic sacrifices of the handful of fighter pilots who saved England during the Nazi aerial blitz of late 1940. Land-based Radar ringed England's coast and rode in its night fighter planes. Radar's unerring fingers picked up the range, direction and speed on Hitler's bombers far out over the water, sometimes even over Europe itself.

Assured of adequate forewarning of each attack, the handful of RAF heroes who saved the British Isles from destruction by air found it unnecessary to maintain incessant fighter patrols which would quickly have exhausted men and planes.

They rested until the foe approached and went into action at the last minute. It was this conservation of energy, machines and fuel which enabled England to fight back until the blitz collapsed.

Little Chats on Public Notices

By JAMES E. POLLARD
Ohio State University.

CUT RATES ILLEGAL

Cutting prices are a familiar story since the onset of the war. It is not generally known, however, there is one field in which it has been illegal to cut prices below those fixed by law. This is in Public Notices where the minimum rates are usually fixed by statute.

The reason for this is the legal doctrine that the law cannot be circumvented by contract or agreement. Thus the rate charged is statutory and not contractual. It has been held in various cases that payment below the statutory rate does not discharge the obligation in full and the difference can be recovered by court action.

On this basis cut rates are illegal when it comes to Public Notices. The rates for them are usually fixed by the state legislatures and they alone have the power to change the basic rate. This is a point that lawyers, attorneys, public officials and even publishers do not always appreciate.

Waldo Soldier Wins Citation from General

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Stoner of near Waldo received a letter last week containing a copy of a commendation by Major General William M. Grimes, division commander, to their son Pvt. James A. Stoner.

Pvt. Stoner, who is stationed with the 53rd Armored Engineer Battalion, North Camp Polk, La., was commended by the division commander for his heroic action in an attempt to rescue two members of his organization from drowning in Lake Caney.

Major General Grimes said in the letter to Pvt. Stoner: "Although your efforts were futile, the unselfishness displayed by your utter disregard for your own personal safety in your attempts to save your fellow soldiers, reflects great credit upon yourself, your organization and the service."

Enclosed with the copy to Mr. and Mrs. Stoner was a letter saying "You can be—and I am sure you are—very proud of your son and I want you to know that as his division commander, I likewise am very proud to have such a boy in this division."

We Must Carry On To Final Victory . . .

Only in the last few months have Americans begun to feel the effects on every day life that necessarily result from modern warfare. We will know more of them.

Increases in government taxes; rationing of gasoline, oil, food, clothing, and even of manpower — these are restrictions that our allies in England, China and Russia have felt for several years.

Of course, we miss the things that we used to have and do, but they are far less essential to us than the winning of this war. We must carry on to final and complete victory.

How About Inflation?

Prices in general are on the march. So far as we know, there never was a war that did not increase living costs that's the nature of war, which is both wasteful and costly.

But funeral prices have been maintained at a remarkably low level, and there is every indication that they will be, even in the face of the upward tendency. We operate, of course under the price ceiling ruling.

No second chance...no other choice

FOR THOSE WHO FALL and freeze on the lime-covered floors of the cattle cars that carry them to German labor camps—there is no other choice.

For the little children of Tepelini and Salonika and Athens who wait with swollen stomachs for the food ship that never arrives, there is nothing else to do—but wait.

For the Russian peasant with no choice but to burn his home before the Nazis reached it; for the Chinese of Nanking who suffered the terrorism of the Jap; for all of those in nameless graves and numberless cells—for all of them—there was no second chance, no other choice.

But for you—a choice still remains. For you—among all the peoples of the world, the road to freedom is still clear.

Never before have we been able to measure the price of freedom for ourselves and our children in such tangible terms. Will you help to keep the road to freedom open? Will you invest—all you can—in War Bonds?

It's not so much to ask. Many of us are making more money than we have for years. The things we'd like to buy with that money are scarce—or unavailable. So, we're asked to loan money at good interest—$4 for every $3 when the Bonds mature. Money to help pay for the war—keep prices down—provide peacetime jobs and peacetime goods and a generally decent world for all of us when the war is won.

Chances are you're already in the Payroll Savings Plan—buying War Bonds—doing your bit. But don't stop there. Raise your sights! Do your best!

Aviation's Inverse Ratios

NEW reports of sensationally lopsided enemy losses in aerial encounters over the Solomons and Germany strengthen the surging conviction that air power can win the war. The possibility seems to be not in aviation's potentialities alone, but in its relation to land and sea power.

Aviation's inverse ratios of German and Japanese decline relative to the growing power of the United States, Great Britain, Russia and China could break the defensive strategy of the Axis in the air before the end of this year. Particularly in the case of Japan, a rate of loss like that indicated in recent disasters could not be withstood; there quickly would come a time and a condition when the remainder of the Japanese air force would be demoralized. Japan, like Italy, is poorly fitted for an aerial slugging match, even if it could count on plane-for-plane losses.

With the Axis aerial arm destroyed or heavily diminished, its naval and land forces would be at a hopeless disadvantage, as Germany proved when it overthrew France. The blitz of 1940 would be reversed—the only reasonable basis of any contention that air power can win the war.

Travel Ads

WHEN the need for that old standby of escapist literature, the travel ad, becomes acute, there is a reasonable substitute these days in the form of exciting plans for the future. The Greyhound Corp., in an announcement well timed for the beginning of vacation season, says it has applied for permission to operate helicopters over existing bus routes covering 60,000 miles of highway.

The announcement comes a short time after Pennsylvania Central Airlines' application for permission to construct seadromes in the Atlantic as a post-war development. It has special appeal for the millions who have taken the helicopter to heart, but have been stymied in their dreaming by such practical problems as keeping one of the things on the premises. Under the Greyhound plan, hedge-hopping would become a problem in public transportation, to be worked out in terms of public accommodation.

By the rule that anticipation is nine-tenths of the joy of travel, this may be the most pleasant travel season in history.

Sen. George's Minority Report

IT WILL attract no particular attention now, but the chairman of the senate finance committee, Sen. George of Georgia, has submitted a minority report on war spending that will mean something, no doubt, in the post-war years.

Sen. George believes military spending should be limited to 75 billion dollars a year. He denies the standing contention of the war spenders that no expense must be spared to win the war. He suspects this philosophy covers up a lot of needless extravagance. He fears the ultimate effect on the national economy of unlimited spending.

Perhaps he is convinced that even in war there is a relationship between what the government would like to do and what the government can afford to do. To be sure, war itself is waste, but the prudent management of war entails minimizing the waste. Undoubtedly Sen. George, like nearly every one of his countrymen, is breathless in the presence of some of the spending which no one dares criticize unless he be smeared with the charge of obstructing the war effort. His views on the most expensive war in history will make interesting reading when the time comes to pay for it in one way or another. They make interesting reading now, though they are only the sound of a voice crying in the wilderness.

India, a Military Post

FIELD MARSHAL SIR ARCHIBALD WAVELL'S appointment as viceroy and governor-general of India will sharpen the international focus on the grand strategy of the war against Japan in the Pacific.

The implications of the Wavell appointment could be relatively slight, or they could be momentous, a prospect which will be examined closely by persons in a position to discover what is going on.

India is the closest available United Nations base for proceeding with the war against Japan on the continent. It is, moreover, a military problem in itself. Field Marshal Wavell, though he takes civilian status in order to occupy his new office, is one of Great Britain's capable military leaders. On the face of it, his appointment strongly suggests that it will be his responsibility to administer Indian affairs to the best advantage for the successful prosecution of the war, though the responsibility of fighting Japan will belong to the head of a new and separate command, while the defense of India will rest with Gen. Sir Claude J. E. Auchinleck. In any event, India's affairs now rest largely in the hands of men trained for the performance of military obligations, a circumstance that will not be overlooked, least of all by the Japanese.

News Behind the News

Paying of Subsidies Is Confession of Failure on Part of Administration.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, June 21—The administration not yet ready to admit defeat and abandon price control is trying to continue [illegible] to get [illegible] by paying subsidies to keep [illegible] is simply open confession.

The argument is based on two points. First, President Roosevelt has [illegible] to the firm instruction of [illegible] economy, should produce it. He asks who has a better plan.

The second point is that England has had such a scheme.

These two justifications are reinforced by the administration appeal that prices will fly through the roof and break up the whole war economy unless its chosen course is followed.

Somewhat artificial foundations underlie these contentions. The inflationary trains is no subterfuge, or anything else, would be needed if the administration had held down prices and wages as promised. The appeal for subsidies is a simple confession of failure.

No Plan Needed

Actually, no other plan is needed even now if the whole price-wage policy could be made to work. Under such circumstances no "better 'ole" can possibly be produced.

The administration has just concocted a glossy political argument to cover failure and proceed to do what it wants to do.

The argument that "Britain did it" always goes well here, implying that if the sensible Churchill espoused it, there cannot be much wrong with it.

In this case, however, Britain is doing it with our money. She (an import nation) buys food from us under lend-lease, giving us IOU's, and then sells same for cash to British wholesalers and retailers.

What is clearly good business for her in this respect, is quite different for our export nation because Jesse Jones, the administration food revolver, must raise the money to pay our bill here by causing war bonds to be sold.

Furthermore, the administration is paying its subsidies to the processors (meat packers, etc.) while Britain pays directly to the farmers. The administration's excuse for this is that we have too many farmers, and direct payments would require tremendous bookkeeping.

But the glossy surface of the proposal has been shined to cast an appealing glow for the labor union workers, the great middle class with its fixed income, and old age pensioners who see prices and taxes rising without a compensating increase in income.

The academic argument that they will pay the bill anyway in the end through taxes to pay off the debt is not apt to appeal to them as forcefully as having the government "roll back" prices, now quietly taking the money out of their pay IOU's. They can thus be appeased for the administration's failure to have held prices and taxes where they should have been.

Unsound

Most favorable factor for the President's course, however, is that he can get away with it if he only prevents Congress from passing an amendment stopping him. He does not need funds, because already he has tapped Jesse Jones' revolving fund for $450,000,000 and can draw unlimited millions more from that source without a congressional appropriation until months hence, when Mr. Jones finds his money bin empty and asks for an over-all congressional appropriation to replenish.

There can be no sound non-political economic justification for a subsidy. It merely takes the money of all the people to pay some of the people a pension for not increasing their prices. It is a stop gap.

If the administration could not hold prices by arbitrary executive action up to now, there is really no guarantee that subsidies will prevent further price increases. It is just as reasonable to expect that the government will have to pay continually larger and more subsidies if it puts the fight against inflation on that basis.

There is a danger also that we are entering upon a subsidized economy. Mr. Ickes is already paying subsidies on oil and coal to offset the increased transportation costs required by government seizure of oil for war purposes. We might even have a labor subsidy.

Economic Stabilizer Vinson told the canners their subsidies would allow wage increases of 10 cents an hour, but they would have to take the chance of Congress allowing the subsidy (thereby also generating more pressure on Congress to be silent).

Conceivably, the government could pay General Motors, or any corporation, a free bounty for a wage increase in exchange for the promise not to increase the prices of its products, if that is deemed feasible.

Everyone knows these things, and apparently no one likes subsidies, but here they are, and they are likely to get bigger—very much bigger.

France Returns To War

Fighting Forces Now Total 300,000.

OVERSHADOWED by bickering over the position of jealous political factions, but a major development in the growth of Allied strength is the comeback of the remnants of the French army in North Africa.

The conclusion three years ago that France had been knocked out of the war is being upset by its resurgence of military strength. Today, the French army in North Africa has reached a strength of 300,000 men, survivors of what was called three years ago, just before the surprising success of Germany's blitz attack, the best army in Europe.

Seven divisions of 105,000 men are fully equipped with new weapons. The French have a navy of 200,000 tons of useful warships and a nucleus of 2,500 pilots for an air force. In provinces and territories outside North Africa there are at least another 90,000 additional troops.

"The ultimate results," says United States News in a report on France's growing military strength," are expected to be greatest in France itself, where the people are still under the rule of Hitler and of the Vichy regime. The signs of rising resistance to Germany are unmistakable. The plan is to transform passive resistance, sabotage and guerrilla warfare into an organized military effort to drive the Germans out of France. The landing of an invasion army in western Europe is expected to give the signal for that uprising, some day in the not too distant future."

American military burdens will be relieved by French aid, coming just when this government is on the verge of drafting fathers for military service. It will be more efficient to equip French troops near the scene of action than to send American forces overseas. An important possibility is the prospect for continued growth of resurgent French forces, perhaps to a strength of 500,000 men. "The rise of France," concludes United States News "is a sign that Germany is losing the war."

Advice for Dumb John

What Every "Handy Man" Should Know.

IF HIS fingers and knuckles hold out, the "forgotten man" of World war II will emerge from the duration with at least one foot well planted on the ladder leading to success as a jack of all trades, meaning automobile mechanic, carpenter, glazier, plumber and painter.

It's all because of the old truism that necessity is the mother of invention. Screens and storm windows must be switched around twice a year and painted once a year, leaky faucets must be laboriously taken apart and reassembled in better condition and innumerable other expert jobs performed about the average house ever though many of the professional artisans have deserted the homefront for Uncle Sam.

While the man they left behind them struggles with his own little mountainous molehills in home mechanics he might glean some small satisfaction by contemplating Uncle Sam's task in educating his unprecedented army of "grease monkeys" in the proper use of such simple devices as the screwdriver and the hammer.

The educational job appears to have been made immeasurably easier by the appearance of a little, 53-page booklet called "Hand Tools," prepared and issued (possibly in self defense) by the war products training service section of General Motors Corp.

Multiply the incident in which the fellow knocked himself out with the handle of pipe wrench in his basement when the pipe threads suddenly loosened by several thousand and you get a faint idea what the various branches of the armed services have to contend with in developing massive corps of the best mechanics in the world to keep the best fighting machines in the world in tip-top condition.

REPLETE with drawings of a Dumb John's misuse of tools, the booklet preaches its gospel as a sergeant might address a class of beginner mechanics in an Army school room.

"You know a good mechanic always takes good care of his tools — you can look at a man's tools and tell right off the bat what sort of mechanic he is," says the sergeant.

Emphasizing the wartime shortage of tools, the sergeant begins by explaining about the screwdriver. Everyone knows and has used a screwdriver but what the sergeant says about it is something that everyone at one time or another has violated. It's easy to believe his statement that it is one of the most misused tools in the kit.

Don't hammer on a screwdriver, get a chisel. Don't pry with it, get a jimmy or wrecking bar. Don't put pliers on it to twist, you might break the blade. Be sure it fits the screw slot as closely as possible, to prevent damage to the tool, the screw head and to reduce the amount of pressure needed to turn the screw.

As for wrenches, the sergeant advises the neophytes to avoid skinned knuckles by pulling on the wrench whenever possible instead of pushing and when not possible to have the hand open and the fingers extended so if the nut breaks loose no hide will be lost from knuckles. Wrenches are constructed to withstand heavy strains when properly used and should "always be placed on the nut so that the pulling force is applied to the stationary jaw side of the handle." Never hammer a wrench, either.

FOR maximum force grasp a hammer handle at the end when swinging it and try to have the face of the head parallel with the surface being struck. Be sure the head is firmly on the handle.

A block of wood placed under the head of a claw hammer when pulling a nail greatly reduces the amount of exertion necessary.

So it goes. The sergeant tells everything but how to avoid hitting your thumb with a hammer and he comes pretty close to covering that point too in his admonition. "Use good mechanical judgment." It's that easy.

This Week in the Sky

The big event of this week, astronomically speaking, is the coming of summer. On Tuesday, June 22, the sun reaches the summer solstice, at its greatest northern declination, and spring is past. The great event occurs at exactly 2:13 a. m., Eastern Standard time. At this time we experience the longest days and the shortest nights of the year. Six months later, at the winter solstice, the reverse is true.

Contrary to the erroneous belief of many people, the earth is farthest from the sun along about the fourth of July, and nearest to it about the beginning of January. It is not the distance of our planet from the sun which causes hot and cold weather on the earth, but the direction in which the rays of sunlight strike the earth.

Even though we are farther from the sun in summer, we in the northern hemisphere have hotter days because the sun's rays strike north of the equator more directly at this time, and less slantingly than they do in the winter. However, while we are experiencing hot weather, the southern hemisphere has its winter, for at this time the south pole of the earth is leaning away from the sun, and the southern hemisphere receives more oblique rays of sunlight.

Mike Fisher

A Pacific Coast Correspondent Leads Off Some Reminiscence About a Swell Guy in Baseball.

By DAMON RUNYON

THEY buried good old Mike Fisher in San Francisco recently, and the rabbi's praise and appreciation of Mike's life appealed strongly to "Scoop" Gleeson, Pacific coast baseball writer of another day, now engaged in pleasanter pursuits, that he felt impelled to write me about it.

Mike Fisher's name may mean nothing to the present generation of baseball fans on the west coast or elsewhere, but in his time he was one of the most colorful figures the game has ever known—and incidentally one of the two men who first took baseball teams over to Japan and China.

The rabbi, writes "Scoop" Gleeson, drew a parallel between life and a game, applying Mike's affiliation with baseball. He spoke of baseball as an integral part of American life, its action, its anecdotes, its records, and its sportsmanship. He said that now that Mike Fisher had ended he would be remembered, perhaps more than mourned, for his accomplishments in baseball just as the game is remembered for its anecdotes and pleasant reminiscence. "It is the game of life" the rabbi said.

"And," says "Scoop," it occurred to me that in its simplicity, that was about as fine a eulogy as I have ever heard used in the passing of a sporting character."

MIKE, who died at 81, was the great pitcher and mound hero of "Scoop's" youth. His uncle, Tommy Gleeson, then manager of the championship Sacramento club, induced Mike to give up his job as a Sacramento policeman to play professional ball. In the years that followed, Mike made baseball history on the Pacific coast, particularly with his Tacoma Tigers.

That was one of the greatest clubs the Pacific Coast league has ever produced. It ran away from the other clubs in the league and consequently lost money. Like the Philadelphia Athletics of years ago when they had that fabled $100,000 infield that would be worth $1,000,000 today. The Athletics won games and victory became monotonous to Philadelphia fans and they quit going to the games. Connie Mack had to sell his playing jewels to stay in business.

Mike's Tigers included Orvie Overall, former University of California pitcher and baseball star, who was afterward to become a pitching mate of mighty Mordecai "Three-Fingered" Brown and Ed Reulbach on Frank Chance's champion Chicago Cubs. Another Tiger was Elmer Stricklett, who had the long since banished spitball in working order before it was ever heard of in the big leagues.

TRUCK EGAN, a shortstop with hamlike hands, who could maul the ball to beat the band, laid the chunk; "Demon" Doyle, who pitched a mean curve and filled in on off pitching days in the outfield; and Jack Fitzgerald, a redhead who afterward pitched a 26-inning game against Elmer Koestner, were also members of the club that Mike never forgot. For years he played host to the survivors of his Tigers at annual dinners and always specified gold cups and champagne.

Mike and Tommy Sheehan, a former Brooklyn third baseman, organized the two clubs that toured the Orient long ago. They made no money but had a lot of fun. Mike always claimed it took three wheelbarrows to cart away the receipts of a sellout in Yokohama and the gross shook down to $4.60 in American money. His experiences on that trip kept him in stories the rest of his life.

He was probably well heeled financially when he died. "Scoop" Gleeson recalls that Mike got his start on the road to fortune by installing nickelodeons in a popular priced dance hall in Seattle and then in cities of the northwest. "Scoop" thinks Mike should be credited with taking the dance hall out of the slums and putting it under the supervision of committees of civic women, making it a highly regarded diversion as well as a revenue producer.

HE BUILT the Arcadia in San Francisco which has lately been converted into one of the city's biggest bowling alleys. Mike started dances there for years with an orchestra led by a young fellow with a huge mop of hair who later became famous on Broadway as Paul Ash. But the fame of gusty old Mike, whose somewhat broad humor was his great characteristic up to the hour of his death, will always rest in Pacific coast baseball circles as Tacoma Tigers. That is the way Mike would have wished it.

Enemies Rub Elbows

STOCKHOLM—Stockholm today is one of the key war "listening posts" for the Allies and the Axis.

Enemies dine in the same restaurants, live in the same hotels, coldly ignoring one another, but they disseminate propaganda, and pry for information which filters into Sweden from the country's neutrality makes her people accessible to the propaganda of all belligerents.

Free Press

A free press and liberal censorship regulations provide a virtually unhampered exchange of news reports, unmatched in other neutral countries like Switzerland, Turkey, Portugal and Spain. During the past year, when the threat of invasion of Sweden lessened, Stockholm has become increasingly important to the Allies as a source of information from Axis territory.

Swedish and Swiss businessmen who travel throughout Europe, maintaining connections in Axis and occupied territory. Stockholm correspondents with Swedish correspondents at Berlin and Rome have special representatives in other European areas.

Other Channels

Sweden's other channels of information are through the regular air transport service between Stockholm, Berlin and Helsinki. Swedish ships ply minestrewn waters to Germany, Denmark and Finland.

Diplomatic agents of the Allies and neutral correspondents interview travelers from Germany and watch the heavily censored German press. The evaluation of information obtained from these sources is often difficult. Not only are many persons poor observers, but often they have unwittingly or otherwise become the victims of planted rumors and propaganda. Nevertheless much valuable information is gathered. Important information frequently come from seamen on ships crossing from Germany. From neutral Sweden, Norway and Finland flow reports from German officials and soldiers are talking.

Composite Picture

Pieced together, these scattered reports provide an excellent composite picture. The information not only keeps the public informed on European events, but much of it is supplemented by considerable confidential data which helps guide the United Nations' war effort against the Axis.

U. S. aircraft carriers customarily are named after famous old ships and battles in American history.

HOW AMERICA BOMBS THE AXIS

It's Done With System and Precision

(First in a series of articles on the methods of the U. S. Army Air Forces, as explained by graduates at the world's largest school for bombardiers.)

Associated Press Features

AAF BOMBARDIER SCHOOL, MIDLAND, Tex.—When you read that U. S. bombers have blasted another German industrial center, you can be pretty sure it happened something like this:

The biggest planes, four-motored Flying Fortresses or Liberators came over at an altitude between 25,000 and 35,000 feet. Each formation covered a space about the shape of the area it was to bomb, but somewhat larger. The planes were probably "staggered," with no two of them flying exactly abreast of each other or at the same precise level.

Even though one particular factory might have been the prime objective, each bombardier did not try to lay his "eggs" right down the smokestack. The leading plane aimed for the center of the target and the others dropped their bombs in co-ordination.

Big Bombers Need Altitude

Combat has proved it advisable that the big bombers, comparatively slow and offering large targets, must seek high altitudes where anti-aircraft fire and enemy fighters present least danger. For this reason, as well as because of their range and load-carrying capacity, they are used against industrial installations, docks and large ships. They seldom attack hostile ground forces.

Fighters cannot escort the heavy bombers on long-range missions. So the Liberators and Fortresses operate in large numbers and in the staggered or stepped-up formations for protection as well as for maximum effectiveness. From whatever direction an enemy plane appears, the gunners of many bombers can train their sights on it.

Attack in Formation

A fair bombardier with an American bombsight could plant a blockbuster within a city square from an altitude of five miles and think nothing of it. Thus for offensive purposes planes operating singly by precision bombing could cause the maximum of destruction. But heavy bombers coming in singly over a target are just what anti-aircraft gunners hope for.

So they attack in a formation which will pass quickly over the target area. When the bombardier of the leading plane has his sight on the heart of the target, he drops his bombs in a "string." They are spaced to fall at definite intervals so they will strike the ground at set distances apart. If the aim is perfect the string will fall across the target.

Only the leading bombardier sights the course. If all the bombardiers sighted the course, a slight error might cause neighboring planes to collide.

If the leading bombardier is a little off in his calculations as to course, the bombs from a following plane will strike the point at which he aimed.

New Cleaning Agent Discovered for Army

By International News Service

ATLANTA, Ga.—Headquarters, Fourth Service Command reports a new cleaning agent being used by American fighting men around the world.

According to claims the compound, known as a cleaning detergent, makes water wetter, cleans without making a collection of insoluble suds and does the job quicker than ordinary soap.

Furthermore, this soapless soap, which is made with a base of petroleum or coal tar, may be used in soft, alkaline or hard water and even in ocean salt water.

Working with water to form a penetrating solution, it rapidly reaches into the fibers of the clothing, removing greasy particles and dirt quickly and without danger of shrinking woolen fabrics, reports say.

Paul Dickerson, 21, and Mary Dickerson, 22, both of 460 Osgood street were arrested by city police Saturday at 10:46 p. m. on Orchard street on charges of disorderly conduct. Both posted $50 bonds for appearance in municipal court today.

The entire west and south coast of China and some of the interior are in the hands of the Japs, she said. At these places families are only allowed a few sticks of wood for fuel and each day they have to get permission to get it. She told of an internment camp where 3,000 persons are held, and said that each person was allowed only 960 calories a day. This results in illness she pointed out and in addition the Chinese must do hard work in their weakened condition. There are 12 missionaries in China and seven missionaries are interned in Japan. In the United States only 35 per cent of the Christians are interested in missions and "it is our duty to get the other 65 per cent interested," she declared.

Mrs. Wertheimer's address was titled "From Rabbinism and Christian Science to Christ," in which she told the personal story of the life of her husband. At the close of the convention the newly-elected officers were introduced and the closing prayer was by Rev. E. E. Nietz of Columbus, district superintendent.

Mrs. Wright was the speaker for the Friday night session. She talked on "Triumphs of the Gospel," and told of her work among the people in French West Africa where she has been since 1936. Friday morning she conducted the morning meditations using as her theme some African Prayers.

Army To Discontinue Leases on 206 Hotels

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, June 21—The war department announced today that leases on 206 hotels now used by the technical training command of the Army air forces will be cancelled effective the middle of July.

It was explained that the cutting off of the program for the military use of hotels and civilian property was made possible by the movement of Army units overseas, which has left quarters in which technical training units now can be housed.

S. Leo Roberts of Dayton, past commander of District No. 3, reported that the service men are not allowed to wear a Veteran's membership pin on their uniform, but can wear the membership bar.

MINERS

in the heavy industries of the Birmingham, Ala., area, for one.

"Blast furnaces in this district will be going down in 73 hours unless the mining of coal is resumed," said one source.

Carnegie-Illinois corporation at Pittsburgh estimated the effect of a general coal stoppage would be felt by its steel plants within 24 hours and that production would fall 75 per cent "in a very few days." Similar concern was expressed at other steel mills.

Ickes had been nominally in charge of the mines since the government took them over on May 1, but until today the operators have continued in actual control, acting as agents of the government.

Ohio Mines Completely Closed

By The Associated Press

BELLAIRE, O., June 21—Ohio's bituminous coal mines shut down completely today in another work stoppage stemming from disputes over a new operator-union contract. Approximately 21,000 miners were away from their pits.

Spokesman for the United Mine Workers of America said none of its members went to work on the midnight or 8 a. m. shifts in this eastern district or the Hocking Valley.

Tom Starks, an organizer for UMW District 6, said he "hoped something might happen in the next 24 hours" to reopen the mines.

A number of other unionists, who declined to be quoted by name, said they intended to fish or go visiting this week instead of working.

Rioting in Detroit Kills Six

had carried stocks of clothing to the sidewalk. As the police carried it back inside, the crowd began throwing bricks at them. Nast and Hartwick collared the ringleader, who seized Hartwick's gun and began shooting as they took him to a patrol wagon. His first shots felled Nast and wounded Hartwick. Then he began firing at the other officers. They returned the fire, killing the gunman and another rioter.

The two slain Negroes were identified as William Hardges, 27, and Robert Davis, 28. Which one fired the shots that killed Nast was not immediately determined.

An unidentified Negro died of loss of blood when part of a broken plate glass window fell on him severing an artery in his leg.

A survey of five police precinct stations at 8 a. m. showed at least 228 persons held for assault and disturbing the peace.

One of those slain bore a draft card issued to Carl Lincoln, 19. Patrolmen Harold Bole and Vernon Hayden said they fired after he threw a brick at Bole. The officers said they were called to Hancock and Beaubien streets by two Negro patrolmen who reported Lincoln was molesting women and throwing bricks into the street. One of the police bullets struck him in the chest.

The others killed were identified through cards on their persons as William Hardges, 27, and Robert Davis, 28.

Police reports said Sergt. Floyd C. Nast and Patrolman Ernest J. Hartwick Jr. were wounded in a gun battle with Negroes at Division and Hastings streets.

Most of the widespread rioting which had continued through the early morning hours was reported under control at 7 a. m.

After a conference of high law enforcement officials, Capt. Donald S. Leonard of the Michigan State police said he believed Detroit police were getting the situation in hand and that he would ask Gov. Harry F. Kelly there was no immediate need for martial law.

Windows of stores in the Negro district were smashed, there was considerable looting, and at least 20 taxicabs were stoned and damaged, police reported.

The conference of officials began at 4 a. m. and continued in session for several hours.

One of its actions was to close all saloons in the Negro district.

Senior Inspector Jesse Head of the police department, in estimating 500 persons injured, said seven were police officers.

Inspector Robert Turner, harbormaster at Belle Isle, said the rioting started at about 10:30 Sunday night on the bread bridge that leads from Jefferson avenue to Belle Isle, popular recreation park in the Detroit river. Turner said the hot Sunday brought about 80,000 persons to the island, "ninety percent of them Negro," and that there were several minor fights during the day. Turner said he believed a minor squabble on the bridge in the midst of the traffic jam probably caused the outbreak.

The disorder spread to Jefferson avenue and then into the main Negro district, which lies immediately east of Woodward avenue, Detroit's main street which runs approximately north and south.

In an effort to control the situation, several hundred sailors from the naval academy which adjoins the Belle Isle bridge were strung in a line across Jefferson avenue, blocking off traffic.

The 1940 U. S. census gave Detroit 149,119 Negroes out of a total population of 1,623,452.

In the Negro district police estimated that 30 taxicabs had been stoned or overturned, and said that numerous store windows were broken. By dawn about 1,500 police were on duty there.

The receiving hospital in downtown Detroit was jammed with injured persons, mostly suffering from head bruises and knife wounds.

There have been a number of minor racial incidents in Detroit during recent months and several strikes have occurred as war factories over the racial issue on production lines.

The Double-V committee, a Negro organization, issued a public appeal at 4:30 a. m. addressed to the "Negroes of Detroit" and stating:

"Despite incidents which occur which are exceedingly unjust, unfair, and discriminatory against our group, we must not resort to violence or give way to race hatred."

False Report Blamed for Riot in Texas

EL PASO, Tex., June 21—Military authorities today sought the origin of false reports of race rioting — reports which they blamed for the death of a Negro soldier and critical injuries to a white soldier yesterday.

Fort Bliss authorities authorized a statement that Negroes had received untrue reports that there was rioting in El Paso. The officials said a number of Negroes from the camp responded to a false call for help from their companions in the downtown area.

By The Associated Press

BEAUMONT, Tex., June 21—Martial law invoked Wednesday by Acting Gov. A. M. Aikin Jr. following racial rioting that resulted in two deaths, was lifted Sunday and 1,600 Texas state guardsmen left for their homes.

Japanese - Russian Powder Keg May Blow Up Any Time

While DeWitt Mackenzie is on vacation, this daily column is being written by Max Hill, former chief of The Associated Press bureau in Tokyo.

BY MAX HILL

News dispatches from Moscow and the short wave broadcasts from Tokyo would give one the impression that all was well between those two obviously antagonistic countries.

Such is not the case, emphatically. They have nothing in common, much to quarrel about.

It is interesting to note it is Japan which is applying the "soft pedal" rather than the Russians, whose hatred for the Japanese is frequently expressed in no uncertain terms.

The Russians boldly describe the Siberian frontier between Manchuria and Chosen (Korea) as the far eastern front, as they have done since 1936, and they have kept two well-equipped armies out in that area despite the trials of the war with Germany.

Japanese hate and fear the Russians.

Russians Not Afraid

That hatred is shared by the Russians, but not the fear. The war with Germany has fortified their quiet confidence.

In the recent session of the diet in Tokyo, Russia was not even mentioned in the short-wave broadcasts, although approval was given for a special bond issue of some 20 billion yen for special war purposes. For many years Japan has maintained an army of almost 1,000,000 men in Manchuria and Chosen, waiting for the proper time to strike.

The war with the United States and Great Britain disrupted the plans of her army but they have not forgotten the Russians.

Japan has only one time to attack Russia—the present. Next year probably will be too late, because of the full force of America and Great Britain will be mobilized against her.

One factor is definitely on the side of the Japanese—distance.

Vladivostok is a full 11 day journey by rail from Moscow and the maritime provinces are vulnerable. Perhaps Russia could not hold them long against a determined drive, but America's short-cut route via Canada, Alaska and Arctic Siberia is a potent factor the Japanese have not overlooked.

Japan May Act

Russia is satisfied to maintain the present troubled but uncertain relations which prevail between her and Japan in the Far East—but this may not be true of Japan.

She has too much at stake to permit the United Nations a probable avenue of attack through Siberia, and she may decide to strike to the north also in an attempt to complete the circle of bases she has around her home islands.

This is a factor in the global war which has been neglected recently, due to developments in Africa and Europe but just the same it is a powder keg which might be touched of at any time.

V.F.W. AUXILIARIES OF DISTRICT MEET HERE

MRS. MILDRED J. PICKERAL

Marion Woman Presides Over Session in Elks Hall.

Mrs. Mildred J. Pickeral, president of district No. 2 of the auxiliary to Veterans Post, No. 3313, Veterans of Foreign Wars, presided over the district meeting of the auxiliaries held Sunday morning in Elks' hall.

Guests were Mrs. Miriam Hocker of Akron, department president Mrs. Thelma Bailey of Lima, department color bearer No. 2, Mrs. Lee Kurlis of Cleveland, whose husband is Past Department commander, and Mrs. Russell D. Gessner, whose husband is department senior vice commander. The auxiliaries represented throughout the district were Lima, Marysville, Delaware, Kenton and Marion.

Greetings were extended by the local auxiliary president, Mrs. Lucille Edington, and greetings from the district post were presented to the auxiliary by the past department commander, Lee Kurlis. Past Commander Leo Roberts extended greetings from the third district. The response was given by Mrs. Miriam Hocker.

Mrs. Hocker explained the need for new members who are eligible because of the present war, and their need of the auxiliary. A motion was made to donate $5 to the Ohio Cottage Fund of the Orphans' Home at Eaton Rapids, Mich. Defense reports from Delphos, Kenton and Lima Defense chairmen were read by the secretary. Mrs. Hocker gave a talk.

At the close of the meeting, gifts were presented to the outgoing presidents throughout the district and the department president by Mrs. Pickeral to show her appreciation for their loyalty and cooperation during their term of office.

The meeting was then adjourned until 2 p. m. when the auxiliary and the Veterans held a joint session.

REPORT THOUSANDS KILLED BY QUAKE

Turkish Province Rocked by Violent Tremors.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, June 21—The Berlin radio said today a violent earthquake had rocked the northwest part of Anatolia province of Turkey and that unconfirmed reports placed the dead in the city of Adapazar alone at 15,000, half its population.

The account, from the none-too-reliable Transocean News Agency, said the quake occurred Sunday night during a heavy thunderstorm, and that a muffled subterranean rumbling from below the earth's surface added to the terror.

The quake's epicenter was placed at Adapazar and the unconfirmed reports, Transocean said, were that 40 per cent of the houses were destroyed and another 20 per cent were damaged severely.

Anatolia is the great western Peninsula of Turkey between the Black and Mediterranean seas, leading to the Dardanelles.

Earth tremors also were reported felt in other parts of Anatolia, even in the east. Sparse and disrupted communications delayed accurate accounts of damage and suffering.

Governors' Conference Opens

here today, but many in ... are freely discussing ... presidential campaign in ... conversations and news... interviews.

Mentioned for Nomination

... a dozen of the Republican ..., including Dewey and ... host, Gov. John W. ..., are being mentioned for ... presidential nomination, along ... 1940 standard bearer, ... L. Willkie, who is not ...

... was asked about reports ... favored Bricker for the ... nomination.

"I am friendly with Gov. Bricker and he is with me, but he has never discussed the presidential question with me and there has been no commitment," the Michigander replied.

He added, however, that Michigan will be "an important state to consider in the next national convention."

He said the people in his section had not made up their minds as how far to go on post-war peace plans because there had been too many "curbstone opinions and not enough facts" on which to base definite conclusions.

"Michigan is not isolationist," he added, "and while I think the people will want to play their part in healing a sickened world they will want to protect our sovereignty. They will want to know how much the other nations are going to give up."

Dewey told reporters once more that he did not want to be considered for the presidential nomination.

Sound Keynote

The sovereignty of the individual states—in war and peace—keynoted the 35th annual governors' conference opening today.

In succession, visiting chief executives made these assertions in prepared addresses:

Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor of Maryland, conference chairman: "The states must be preserved in the fullest plenitude of their powers. That government which is closest to the people and in which the people have the most direct participation is more likely to reflect the public will than a remote centralized government."

Gov. Earl Warren of California: I wish that federal agencies could be made to see that federal, state and local governments must work together as a team; that all thinking, planning and execution cannot be done in Washington to the exclusion of states and cities; ... and that real national unity comes from the grass roots of the 48 states rather than from the directives of innumerable bureaus in Washington, D. C."

Urges States Doing Jobs

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York: Attacking the farm labor problem of New York, "one of our happy discoveries has been that the most effective way to avoid surrender to the failures of the national government is to step out and do the job ourselves as a state."

Gov. Ellis Arnall of Georgia: "The states have important rights. They have almost unlimited police powers. Their authority over taxation is restrained only by competition among themselves. They have reserved complete control over the education of the children of America.

"We ought to remember that these rights are not inherent in geographical entities traced upon maps. They were delegated to the state governments by the people, in whom all sovereignty is implicit."

The governors assembled expressly to consider coordination of interstate efforts to expedite the war program and to plan for post-war reconstruction, particularly to agree upon blue-prints designed to avoid unemployment during the transition between wartime and peacetime economies.

Adapted to Emergency

"In the last several months the states have adopted legislation to make possible the fullest utilization of state facilities in the emergency program," said O'Conor. "Reference to what the states have done and are doing brings to the fore the demonstrated fact that these sovereignties are capable of administering within their borders programs essential to the war effort.

"The proof is at hand that there is no need to depart from our original constitutional set-up whereunder the state and federal governments, as independent sovereignties, are expected to discharge responsibilities when necessary jointly for the public welfare."

RAISES 1944 ISSUE OF FREE ENTERPRISE

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, June 21—If government will not declare its intentions before the next election, industry should ask the two political parties whether they are for free enterprise or against it, declared a Chicago steel executive before the southern Ohio post-war conference of the National Association of Manufacturers today.

Wilfred Sykes, president of the Inland Steel Co., in delivering a prepared address before the conference, said, "in letting go the obvious war-time controls—prices, materials, rationing, saving, manpower, etc., it might be possible for government to upset free enterprise if it wanted to upset it."

"And even if the release of controls were negotiated in an orderly and cooperative fashion, government would still have the power to destroy free enterprise through its tax policy," he added.

Sykes said the first test for the survival of free enterprise under post war conditions would be providing steady employment but that government can make it fail this test by maintaining an unwise tax structure.

"When 10,000,000 men come out of the Army and war industries, looking for peacetime jobs and can't find them, they will be put on public works. Then the economy would be almost as short of civilian goods as it was in wartime, and rationing, price ceilings and other wartime controls would have to stay on—just as long as the millions of men remained on public works payroll," he declared.

Marion Driver Second Among Little Grand Circuit Harness Pilots

Hugh Bell Boasts 11 Heat Wins; Gabe Cartnall First with 13 Victories.

By LOREN W. TIBBALS
Marion Star Sports Editor

IN SECOND place only two points off the leading pace, Hugh Bell of 237 South State street, surprise package of Marion's 15-night Little Grand Circuit harness racing meet, is in a choice position today to top top driving honors here at the meet's midway and final mark.

Bell, a familiar figure around harness race tracks for many years but a leading figure at a local meeting this year for the first time, copped two heats Saturday night to boost his heat victories during the first nine days of the current meeting to 11.

Leading the fairground driving colony with 13 heat wins is Gabe Cartnal of Hanover, who was driven four of the five horses in his stable to Little Grand Circuit wins. Most consistent winner in the Cartnal stable has been The Walnut Aone, a six-year-old pacer credited with five heat wins in six starts. Miss Flower, a five-year-old 15 class pacer owned by Mrs. G. L. Lamoreaux of Perrysburg, is second with four wins in a half dozen tries. Charming Sister, 3, five-year-old trotter, has been victorious in three out of six starts.

Tonight's Program

Tonight's program will be featured by the 2.26 class pace, which attracted a field of nine of the leading "green" horses quartered at the fairground. Supplementary attractions include two classified trots.

Saturday night's program, witnessed by a crowd estimated by Race Secretary Frank M. Foster at 3,200, completely washed out previous betting and attendance marks. Mutuel Manager George Reverman estimated Saturday's play at around $12,000. Reviewing the pari-mutuel handle during the first nine days of the meeting, Reverman said the "take" averaged $8,000 a night or approximately $72,000 to date. This is nearly double the $40,000 grossed during a 10-night stand last spring.

Virginia D. Scott, owned by E. C. Moriarity, mayor of Wichita, Kan., and driven by Everett Osborn, also of Wichita, won the opening race on Saturday's 11-dash nocturnal program — the classified trot matching 18-20 class trotters. Osborn piloted the bay mare to victory in the third heat after finishing fourth and second in the first and second heats, respectively. Winner of the first heat was Chuck Signal, owned by S. S. Mather of Princeton, N. J., and guided by "Two-Hole" Jack Brown of Allentown, Pa. Millie Aubrey, owned by Jack Reynolds of Pinehurst, N. C., a blacksmith at the fairground track, won the second heat.

Wins with Callie G

Callie G, owned by Frank Callahan of Tiffin and driven by Bell, finished on top in the first and second heats of the free-for-all pace to cop that feature. Last year the Tiffin-owned horse failed to win in 10 starts. His earnings in Saturday night's events boosted his total earnings to well over $7,000. F. R. G., the prize pacer owned by Leo Gottschalk of Milwaukee, Wis., won the third heat of the feature.

Jack Brown, the ace Allentown, Pa., catch driver, piloted Chuck Perkins, owned by Ralph Satterfield of Harrington, Del., to victory in the 2:25 trot by copping first place in all three heats. From Brown's stable, Leah Hanover, owned by the Bear Haven Farms of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., and driven by the sensational Marion pilot, finished second in each heat.

The three-year-old pace, a supplementary Saturday attraction, was split by Armanda Wood and On Top. The former, owned by Mrs. George McCarney of Pontiac, Mich., and driven by Bob Plaxico of Canton, won the first heat and On Top, owned by Thomas Coyle of Buffalo, N. Y., and driven by Clint Hodgins of Shelbyville, Ind., finished third in the first heat but won the second mile.

Split Ticket

Saturday's daily double resulted in a split ticket, there being no tickets sold on Chuck Perkins and Callie G, winners of the first and second races, respectively. Holders of tickets favoring Chuck Perkins in the second were paid $10.40 and those holding tickets on Callie G to win the third received $6.40. The quinella paid $31.40.

Haegg Outstrips Rice in AAU

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, June 21—Gunder Haegg gave American track fans their first glimpse of the speed and stamina that carried him to seven world records Sunday as he soundly whipped the United States pride and joy, Greg Rice, at the National AAU championships on Randall's Island.

The gaunt Swede, his long blond hair flowing in the breeze, set virtually all the pace in the 5,000-meter run and crossed the finish line 40 meters in front of Rice going down to his first defeat in his last 66 trips to the post.

Haegg's time of 14:48.5 was far off his world record standard of 13:58.2 but his seemingly effortless stride captured the fancy of the shirt-sleeved crowd, estimated by the officials at 19,000. He took the lead after the first 200 yards and, except for a few strides near the mile mark, he never was headed. Fred Wilt, formerly of Indiana, was the momentary leader.

Rice, attached to the Merchant Marine Academy at Kings Point, L. I., trailed by 75 yards with a quarter mile to go and although he knew he was a beaten man he brought the crowd to its feet with the finishing 'kick' that has made him popular ever since he ran for Notre Dame. The kick cut Haegg's margin almost in half and caused the Swede to open up in the last 100 yards but there was no catching the flying fireman from Gayle.

The American debut of Haegg was the high spot of the meet that saw all of the net receipts, estimated at more than $70,000 going to the Army Air Forces Aid Society.

Hal Davis, Olympic Club flier from San Francisco, turned in the only record performance as he and Bill Cummins, Rice Institute hurdler, won two events each. In winning his sixth and seventh AAU outdoor sprint crowns since 1940, Davis matched the meet record of 10.3 he holds jointly with Barney Ewell in winning the 100-meter title and cut one-tenth of a second off the world 200-meter record only to have it disallowed because of a strong following breeze.

REDS DROP TWO, READY FOR CARDS

Cincinnati Humbled by Pirates; Drop to 2nd Division.

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, June 21 — The Cincinnati Reds bring the world champion St. Louis Cardinals to their home lot tonight for a single contest under the lights.

That Sunday jinx caught up with the Cincinnati outfit again yesterday when they dropped a doubleheader to the Pittsburgh Pirates in the Smoky City to go tumbling into the second division.

The Buccos came streaking from behind in the eighth round to win the opener, 5 to 4, and pulled the same trick in the same inning of the nightcap to triumph 4 to 2, before 27,392 partisans.

Elbie Fletcher's mighty three-run homer sent Johnny Vander Meer and his cohorts into defeat in the eighth of the hd-lifter.

Ed Heusser, who pitched four-hit shutout ball in the second game up to the fatal eighth, showed signs of tiring and Manager McKechnie replaced him with Joe Beggs.

The Pirates gleefully leaped on his offerings and those of his successors, Clyde Shoun and Vernon Stone for five hits and four runs.

Truett "Rip" Sewell, master of five different types of slow pitches, went the route for the Buccos in the opener to ring up his eighth triumph of the season.

Rookie Jack Hallett, who leaves baseball Tuesday for the Navy, started the second game, but was relieved in the seventh by Xavier Rescigno who was followed by Johnny Lanning.

Week-End Sports in Brief

New York—Gunder Haegg of Sweden ended Greg Rice's victory string at 65 by defeating American runner by 40 meters in 5,000 meter race for National A.A.U. championship before 19,000. Haegg was timed in 14:48.5, more than a minute slower than his own world record. New York A.C. retained team title and Gil Dodds took 1,500 meter title again.

Chicago—Ted Collins, manager of Radio Singer Kate Smith, awarded Boston franchise in National Football league, effective at close of 1943 season. Don Ameche's bid for berth in Los Angeles and Charles Murray's request for one at Buffalo, tabled until December meeting. Pittsburgh and Philadelphia teams to merge for coming season.

Detroit—Seymour Greenberg of Chicago retained national clay courts title by defeating Billy Talbert of Cincinnati, 6-1, 4-6, 6-3, 6-3. Pauline Betz of Los Angeles retained women's crown.

Montclair, N. J.— Francisco Segura, Ecuadorean representing the University of Miami, annexed eastern intercollegiate tennis title by defeating Bob Wasserman of Ohio State, 6-0, 6-1, 6-2, and combined with Manfred Berliner to take doubles title.

BREWERS CHALK UP EIGHT STRAIGHT WINS

Come Within Two Games of Association Leaders.

By The Associated Press

Aided by the determined efforts of two pitchers who failed to make the grade with the Chicago Cubs this season—Eddie Hanyzewski and Paul Erickson — the Milwaukee Brewers have compiled an eight-game winning streak.

The Brewers created 28 victories against 19 defeats for the campaign to bounce within two games of the league lead, which Indianapolis has been striving to expand into proportions of a runaway.

Yesterday the Brewers swept a doubleheader from the Millers, 1 to 0 on Erickson's six-hit pitching, and 3 to 1 on Wes Livengood's substantial five-hitter.

Indianapolis also made a twin killing at the expense of the Toledo Mud Hens, 5 to 3 and 5 to 1.

The Kansas City Blues salvaged a doubleheader from St. Paul, winning the first game, 2-1, behind fine 11-inning hurling by Tommy Reis, and grabbing the second, 4-3.

The only split bill was at Louisville, where the last-place Colonels spirited away a 6-2 decision from Columbus in the nightcap after being defeated 8-2 in the starter.

Tribe Advances from Seventh to Third Place Over Week-end

By JUDSON BAILEY

This year's pennant race in the American League may become historic as the tightest the major leagues have ever seen.

The eight clubs are separated by only eight games and six of them are bunched within 2½.

Startling shifts have been going on in the standings as a result. The Cleveland Indians, who were in seventh place before they started play Saturday, had soared into third at the close of competition yesterday.

The Boston Red Sox, who dragged along near the bottom for weeks, bounced blithely into the first division. The Chicago White Sox, who were third ten days ago, dropped into a tie with the St. Louis Browns for last place.

The greatest distance between any two clubs in the three games separating the first place New York Yankees and the second place Washington Senators.

Divide Doubleheader

Yesterday the Yanks and Senators tangled in a doubleheader, Washington winning the first 5-3 and New York took the second 7-6.

Wildness by Charley Wensloff and Ernie Bonham gave the Senators the opener. After Mickey Vernon had hit a two-run homer in the sixth, they walked five men to force in two runs. The Yanks clinched the nightcap with five runs in the second inning, climaxed by Charley Keller's second home run of the day and his tenth of the year.

Cleveland and the White Sox also split, Chicago nailing the first 10-6 and Cleveland the second 7-2.

Boston swept a doubleheader from the Philadelphia Athletics 7-3 and 6-5 with an attack that included five home runs. Tabor hit two of Buddy Rosar's first game and Babe Ruth's one with one on to decide the second.

The Browns downed Washington 5-3 and 3-4 with Bobo Newsom pitching importantly. Chet Laabs hit one with two aboard in the first game and Harland Clift duplicated the feat in the second piece.

Pittsburgh sunk the Reds in a double victory yesterday, 5-4 and 4-0, and the Pirates advanced to third place.

Phillies Win Two

The Phillies swept two at Boston 13-7 and 7-0, scoring ten in the seventh inning of the first game and getting a dazzling pitching performance from Schoolboy Rowe in the nightcap.

The Brooklyn Dodgers broke out the New York Giants' losing single game that went ten innings before a hit by Augie Galan drove home the decider.

This cut the first place margin of the St. Louis Cardinals to two games as the world champions divided a doubleheader with the Chicago Cubs. The first game was an affair in which ten pitchers were used, the Cards winning in the ninth with a six-run rally after two were out in the eighth. The second game abbreviated to seven innings by weather, went to the Cubs 2-1.

Series with Detroit Awaits Indians

By The Associated Press

GREAT LAKES, Ill., June 21—The up-and-down Cleveland Indians were in sole possession of third position after winning a series of five games with the White Sox.

The Tribe closed the series yesterday by dividing a double header and moved here today to meet exhibition contest with the Great Lakes Bluejackets. Joe Heving hurls against the Sailors. The Indians rest tomorrow before traveling to Detroit to open a series with the Tigers.

Chicago halted the Indians' four game winning streak by taking the opener of yesterday's twin bill 10 to 6, but Jim Bagby's masterful hurling performance spanned Cleveland to a 7 to 2 triumph in the afterpiece.

A seven-run rally in the first inning kayoed the Redskins in the opener. The Tribe started scoring and led 3 to 0 going into the last of the third, but the Sox chosed Allie Reynolds from the mound with a pair of runs and hit the jackpot in the following stanza against Pete Center and Ken Milnar. Center's exit from the hill marked the end of his string of 14 hitless innings in relief roles. Rookie Pat Seerey slammed a homer in the final inning but it was a wasted effort.

The Indians returned to the win column in the nightcap as Jim Bagby notched his second triumph of the season against three losses. The big blows were Mickey Rocco's two-run homer into the lower right field seats in the fifth and Ken Keltner's circuit clout in the eighth.

Trosky, who had taken a year's layoff because of migraine headaches, had expressed a desire to return to the Indians, and had been working out here at Comiskey Park, home of the White Sox, while he waited Peckinpaugh's arrival.

But, Peckinpaugh said, it was agreed after a conference that Trosky would return to his farm at Norway, Iowa, because of various considerations, including his commitments to an Iowa farm pool.

Numbers Game Helps Mail Men Speed Their Work

Associated Press Features

NEW YORK—Uncle Sam has invented a new numbers game, and it's sweeping the country.

Did you ever wonder how postal clerks can memorize all the streets of a large city, so you receive even that post card from Aunt Minnie addressed to "Monroe Street" when you really live on "Mongoose Avenue"? Well, postal clerks in all large American cities will soon find their jobs immeasurably simplified under the "key" system of addressing that is being introduced by the post office department.

Senders of letters to these cities will be expected to include the correct postal district number along with the regular street address.

New York Plays It

Long used in Europe and Canada, the system has recently been started in New York City, with successful results. Correctly addressed letters to this metropolis now include the name of the borough and the district number as: "Bronx, 63."

Previously, says Postmaster Albert Goldman, New York City mail sorters had to memorize approximately 3,700 place names—streets, alleys and public buildings. Two years was the usual time required to achieve the feat. Under the new system, even a beginner can quickly route mail to its destination.

"The response to the announcement of the unit numbering system has been most gratifying," Goldman reports.

The post office has issued instructions to start the plan in 178 major cities in 42 states, including Chicago, San Francisco, Washington, D. C., and Cincinnati. First step for the city dweller is to learn his postal division number and notify his correspondents.

War Angle

Uncle Sam's numbers game meets a wartime need.

In the New York City postal district 2,800 employes have entered the armed forces, while an additional 1,800 have resigned to do war-plant work. Breaking in more than 4,600 new men has shown the necessity for a more exact system of addressing.

Twenty-five years ago the European plan was tried in Boston but failed. This time the innovation is nationwide, and the experience of the largest American city indicates to postal authorities that it will not only succeed but become a permanent, and unnoticed, part of letter-writing.

Your post office will tell you your number in Uncle Sam's new game.

Mrs. Bertha Turpin of 364 North Greenwood street reported the second burglary to police last night. This took place between 5 p. m. and 6:30 p. m. yesterday. A revolver was taken from a dresser drawer in the Turpin home. She told police that entrance into the house was probably gained through an unlocked rear door.

TRAFFIC ACCIDENTS REPORTED BY POLICE

Four Mishaps Occur in Marion and Vicinity.

Four auto accidents in Marion and vicinity were reported to state highway police over the weekend.

Autos driven by Arden Richard Groll, 16, of Route 6, Marion, and Dr. Irving Schulman, 35, of Route 7, Marion, collided on a township road, about two miles south of Marion Saturday night about 7:30. Schulman, his wife, Gertrude, and Groll were taken to Marion City hospital following the accident and were discharged yesterday. Schulman and Groll suffered back injuries and Mrs. Schulman possible fracture of the pelvis.

At 10:30 p. m. Saturday Harold Ramsey, 31, of Edison fell asleep at the wheel of his car and suffered a badly lacerated forehead when his machine hit a steel fence at the Claridon cemetery, state patrolmen reported. He was taken to Marion City hospital after the accident and was released yesterday. His car was slightly damaged.

M. L. Fox, 75, of Route 1, Richwood, was fined $5 and costs in mayor's court in Richwood yesterday on a charge of reckless operation of his auto. His car collided at 9 o'clock yesterday morning with a car driven by Miss Florence Rubeck, 17, of Richwood on Route 37, about 1½ miles north of Richwood. Mrs. Helen Rubeck, 58, Miss Cecelia Rubeck, 22, mother and sister of Florence, suffered bruises as a result of the collision with the Fox auto. Mary E. Fox, 75, wife of M. L. Fox, and Sarah E. Eddy, 67, of Richwood who were riding in the Fox car, also received bruises.

A truck driven by Joseph McClean, 23, of Hamilton overturned in a ditch after it was struck by an army convoy truck on Route 4, about a mile north of the Marion-Crawford county line at 5:45 this morning. A milk truck was parked in the road facing south and the army convoy, also heading south, in an attempt to go around it, collided with McClean's truck, driving north. Only slight damage was caused to McClean's vehicle. The driver suffered no injuries.

STOCK PRICES STILL DECLINE

Buying Timidity Continues as Market Followers Keep Eye on Europe.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, June 21—Stocks generally operated on the downside in today's market without being subjected to any real selling pressure.

The new coal mining crisis, coupled with labor disputes other fields, received the principal blame for buying timidity. Expectations of big European developments also kept many customers in the neutral zone.

Prominent on the drift were U. S. Steel, Eastman Kodak, Anaconda, Westinghouse, General Motors, and Montgomery Ward. Intermittent gainers included Woolworth, Western Union and General Electric.

INVASION

ship near the Tunisia coast and probably sank it.

(Allied shipping riding at anchor in Bizerte harbor was attacked "with good result," the Italians said.

(Porto Empedocle, Licata and Syracuse were other Sicilian objectives bombed, the Italians said.

(Twelve were listed dead in the raid on Reggio Calabria, five at Syracuse, and two dead and 23 injured in other raids.)

Reliable allied sources flatly denied rumors Italian envoys—Marshal Pietro Badoglio, Crown Prince Umberto and even King Vittorio Emanuele were named in gossip among the French civil population — were anywhere in North Africa seeking a separate peace.

Axis Troops Pour In

On the other hand it appeared that axis troops and air forces had been poured into Sardinia and Cicily to defend the island outposts in a last ditch stand.

(Axis invasion speculation took the turn last night that action might come in the eastern Mediterranean, where the middle east command has been pounding enemy shipping and axis railway targets on the Greek mainland.

(The German radio, in a broadcast recorded by the ministry of information at London, said an allied fleet was reported off the Syrian coast, making preparations to steam into action in the Aegean sea.

(The Syria-Turkey border was closed as a security measure for a period last week.

(The German radio also said two battleships, an aircraft carrier, a cruiser and 17 destroyers—three of them American — were reported anchored at Gibraltar and that five landing craft mounting cannon and anti-aircraft batteries had moved from the fortress in the direction of North Africa.

The Italians asserted, without allied confirmation, that axis air power was stabbing at increased allied shipping in the Mediterranean and in Harbors at Bone, Bizerte and Pantelleria.

Father's Day Program Presented by Grange

A program in honor of Father's day was presented in a meeting of Bethlehem Grange Friday night in the Grange hall. A part of the program enacted for each letter of "Father" included "F, favors for fathers," consisting of miniature American flags and singing of a song of congratulation to fathers; "A, arise and sing," with the group singing "Faith of Our Fathers"; "T, topic for discussion," the group giving opinions on the question "Should the United States Furnish Food for the Conquered Nations of Europe Now?"; "H, history of Father's day," presented by Miss Esther Augenstein; "E, Eisenhower, outstanding father of 1943," brief biography given by Mrs. Robert Rice; "R, report from Africa," stunt with all members taking part. Announcement was made of the county Pomona Grange meeting at Morral tomorrow night with a pie social featured.

GRAINS HAVE DAY OF HEAVIER SELLING

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, June 21—Favorable weather for crops and expansion of winter wheat harvesting in the southwest brought fairly heavy selling into grain pits today. Wheat, oats and rye lost more than a cent, with extreme declines approaching 2 cents at times in oats and rye.

Wheat dropped to lows for the past month, selling about 10 cents under seasonal peaks. Reports from Kansas said the crop was improving and a private estimate placed production in that state at 150,000,000 bushels or more compared with a government June 1 estimate of 144,000,000 bushels.

House Passes Biggest Appropriations in History

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, June 21—The house passed unanimously and sent to the senate today the biggest appropriation bill in history—$7,510,438,872—to permit the war department to "bring the war home" to the axis. The vote was 345 to 0.

At about the same time the supreme court ruled that an alien's citizenship cannot be cancelled merely because he was a member of the Communist party. The order revalidated the citizenship of William Schneiderman, state secretary of the party in California, which had been cancelled by a district court order upheld by the federal circuit court in San Francisco. Justice Murphy, delivering the opinion, said citizenship cancellation was not justified by imputing a "reprehensible interpretation" of an organization to a member in the absence of "overt acts" by the member "indicating that such was his interpretation."

Kenton Soldier Aboard Torpedoed Ship Saved

KENTON, O., June 21—"Now it can be told," wrote Cpl. Gerald F. Ansley of the U. S. Marine Corps to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Ansley, Kenton, And then he spoke of the torpedoing of his ship while crossing the Atlantic to Iceland last February, of the death of practically every man in his small Marine outpost, and of his rescue by a coast guard cutter hours after he was cut down on a life raft. He is an aerial gunner in Iceland and admits he "has seen some action."

Davies To Be Heard At 10 Tonight Over NBC

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, June 21—Whether it is due to the new FCC rules on chain broadcasting, now in effect for a week, the networks report there is a growing tendency on the part of affiliated stations to relay a more complete schedule of sustaining programs. Previously sustainers didn't always get so wide a distribution.

One reason attributed to this development is the rule which gives stations first call on their particular network's broadcasts, while programs not carried are made available to other stations in the same area.

Joseph E. Davies, former ambassador to Moscow and recently returned from a specially assigned trip to the Russian capital, will broadcast tonight and again next Sunday. His address tonight will come to NBC at 10, in place of the usual concert, from the governor's conference at Columbus.

Pitfalls of Love

BY ADELE GARRISON

"OH, NO, my Phillip. Olina protested. 'That will be all right,' she said. 'You have had your fun early in life, but for mine I am waiting.'

He smiled and stroked her hair, put his hand on hers. I knew the battle was on.

Perhaps not needless to say, I was most pleased at the daily developments. Olina did not like me. I knew that.

I guessed that her attitude toward me was the result of her adoration of her mother, with whom she had lived in almost complete seclusion.

"And she is the perfect companion," she would tell Phillip. "She knows all the right people. But I am glad to be rid of her. She drives me mad."

"Then," Phillip Ruth Herrick does not know Olina or Phillip as well as I do, "you will be glad to see me by night?"

"It is extremely improbable, I replied.

Would Accompany Olina

"Then,—is there any reason why Phillip and I cannot accompany Olina to the bank and to the hotel?" she asked. "We will not need to get out of the car at the bank. I assume that a guard will go in with her and escort her out again. We would not need to sit with her in the waiting room of the hotel where she is to meet that woman. We could go early enough so as to take our places before the woman's arrival. But we would be near her. You understand, my dear Madge, I know."

"Yes, I do understand," I told her, "but of course my father is the only one who can decide that question. I will tell him what you have said as soon as I see him, and when you come over with Olina in the morning, or more probably later today, he will let you know his decision."

"I pray it may be favorable," she said, and her husband's eyes met mine, then quickly turned away again. But I had read an understanding of my dilemma in them, and knew that he realized why Olga's request, prompted by her intense maternal anxiety, would, in all probability, be denied by my father.

Would Be Recognized

Obscurity, anonymity,—these were the qualities with which my father wished to invest Olina's meeting with Ruth Herrick. There must be nothing to arouse the "wilderness woman's" curiosity. And if there were two people in the world more calculated to attract admiration and to arouse curiosity and conjecture than Phillip Veritzen and his regal wife, I could not think of them. Besides, both of their photographs had been published repeatedly in the newspapers. Ruth Herrick, even wilderness-bound as she had been, in all probability would recognize them, know that they were guarding Olina, and take alarm.

But it was not my province to tell her these things, and I was glad I had been able to take refuge behind my father's authority.

Then Olina struck into the conversation, with a preliminary "Excuse me, Madam," to her mother.

"Please, Aunt Madge," she said, "will you tell me how I am to dress in the morning for that trip?"

"In the quietest, most ordinary street costume you have," I answered promptly. "That note gave you no directions about your clothing. It merely said to take a handbag. Incidentally, you had better interpret that to mean something larger than an ordinary handbag. Fifty thousand dollars, in bills no larger than twenties,

YOUR HEALTH

BY LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

X-Ray in Diagnosis

I DO NOT believe that any discovery in science was ever made which strikes me as so entirely magical and wonderful as the x-ray. The revelations of the microscope, which have shown us a whole world of tiny living creatures which we would never see otherwise, is wonderful but I can make sense out of the microscope. But that a shaft of light could be devised which would go through opaque objects and reveal the contours of organs known only to the anatomist is certainly pure witchery.

I presume it has affected nearly everybody in the same way and that has exaggerated its value as a diagnostic procedure.

Not that I want to attempt to underrate its value. I should say that taking a series of medical and surgical cases and assessing the value of the diagnostician gets out of various procedures, the x-ray would come third. As I have been saying in this series, the patient's story of his own illness is the most important, what the doctor can see, feel and hear is second in importance and the x-ray comes third.

This is true in the first place because it is valuable in more kinds of cases than any other laboratory procedure. It is valuable to the bone surgeon, to the chest physician, to the heart physician, to the internist in diseases of the stomach and to the nose, throat and ear specialist.

In a series of 100 patients the doctor, no matter what kind of doctor he is, will have to have a history in all of them. He will have to have a physical examination in all of them. And he will have to have an x-ray in about 50 per cent of them in order to be perfectly sure of the diagnosis.

It can perhaps best be illustrated by the common case of a fractured bone. The surgeon hears about the accident and knows what part of the body is hurt and what part hurts. That is the primary and most certain thing in his inquiry.

PROUD. His best friends never recognize him, but this American sailor, back in the native country after 20 months of action abroad, is justly proud of his beard.

If it is in the leg, he can tell by feeling and looking at the leg pretty well whether it is a broken bone, a dislocation or a sprain. But he can not be perfectly certain until he has an x-ray and he can't be certain whether the bone is broken in one or two places when it is fragmented or not, unless he has an x-ray.

In chest work it has been recognized for 20 years that only the x-ray can detect certain cases of tuberculosis, lung abscess and foreign bodies in the bronchial tubes.

Its use in heart disease is limited, but for confirmation it is always valuable.

Its value in stomach, intestinal and gallbladder disease is also more limited but when it gives good confirmatory evidence.

The only limitation of the x-ray is that it tells anatomical details and gives very little information about the functional capacity of an organ. It can, for instance, tell you whether the heart is enlarged, but only by watching the patient walk and taking his blood pressure and noting the rate of his breathing can the physician tell what the functional capacity of a given patient's heart is.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

M. D. C.—What is Paget's disease of the bone? Is there a cure?

Answer. Paget's disease is a slow-growing increase in the thickness and density of the bones, particularly of the legs and skull. It usually does not come on until fairly late in life. One of the most conspicuous symptoms is that a man has to change the size of his hat from year to year. No methods of inducing regression are known.

E. B.—What is the cause of the disease, encephalitis? What are the symptoms and is there any cure for it?

Answer. Encephalitis is caused by a germ, it affects the cells of the brain. The common name for it is sleeping sickness, because the most prominent symptom in most cases is a deep sleep amounting to coma. Most of the patients get well.
